Bermuda Liner Sinks, 415 Persons Rescued

Ship Rammed at Fog-hidden Entrance of New York Bay—SOS Brings Aid—Including the Crew 415 Were Saved Without Loss of Life or Injury—No Panic or Confusion.

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—Rescued when their ship was rammed and sunk at the fog-hidden entrance of New York Bay, 250 passengers of the Furness-Bermuda steamship Fort Victoria were safe ashore today. Including the crew 415 persons were saved without loss of life or injury.

The Fort Victoria was rammed amidships by the Clyde Liner Algonquin at 4 p. m. yesterday as the Bermuda-bound ship stopped off Ambrose lightship to drop her pilot. The Algonquin was outward-bound for Miami and Galveston with 189 passengers.

The pilot boats Sandy Hook and New Yorker, the first vessels to respond to the SOS signals of the two ships, picked up the lifeboats of the Fort Victoria until she sank at 7:30 p. m. They were rescued by one of the tugs which were trying to keep her afloat.

Of the passengers, who lost all their baggage with the sinking of the ship, 144 were landed at Stapleton, Staten Island, by the pilotboat Sandy Hook and transferred by ferry to Manhattan. Tugs landed the others at the North river pier of the Furness-Bermuda Line. The steamship company obtained hotel accommodations for the passengers.

The Algonquin, with her bows stove in, but not dangerously damaged, anchored near the scene of the collision to wait for the fog to thin before returning to her pier today. Her passengers remained aboard.

Despite the thick fog which had hung over the harbor all week the Fort Victoria left her pier on Schedule at 11 a. m. With her fog siren sounding, she crept down the bay at reduced speed, feeling her way.

Most of the passengers were below decks when the engines were stopped just outside the lower bay to permit the pilot to go over the side. She was 12 miles from Manhattan.

Without warning the black bow of the Algonquin clove the fog and slashed through the plates of the Fort Victoria just forward of amidship, tearing a gaping hole in her port side.

The Fort Victory rapidly developed a list as water poured into her forward hold and flooded the fire and engine rooms, stopping the generators. An emergency dynamo was started to furnish power for the radio and a few lights.

Captain J. W. McKenzie of the Algonquin, ascertaining that his ship was in no danger, stood by, joining his SOS calls with those of the Fort Victoria. The Algonquin, being a coastwise boat, had no special pilot, as was required for the Fort Victoria in the bay.

No Panic or Confusion.

Passengers on landing said there was no panic or confusion, although many were badly frightened when ordered to don life preservers and go to their boat stations. The Fort Victoria carried 12 boats, one of which was stove in by the crash.

The passengers praised the conduct of the officers and crew. The rule of women and children first was strictly observed in filling the boats.

After the passengers and crew were off, the Algonquin was lashed to one side of the Fort Victoria and to four salvage tugs the other in an an effort to tow her to drydock or into shallow water, but the stricken vessel continued to list to starboard and finally went down.

The Fort Victoria was a vessel of 7,734 tons register, 411 feet long with 34 feet beam. She had a speed of 14 knots. She was built at Glasgow in 1913 and was valued at $1,500,000.

The Algonquin has a gross tonnage of 5,300.

Although the first S O S was sent out as soon as the crash happened, radio broadcasting from stations in the New York area was not silenced for 20 minutes. Officials said static interfered with their operators hearing the call.

It was not until radio headquarters of the third naval district sent out orders to clear the air in accordance with radio regulations that the broadcasting of programs was halted. Broadcasting stations were silent thereafter for more than three hours while messages telling of the shipwreck and rescue were flashed.

Happy Family Reunions.

The lobby of the Hotel McAlpin, headquarters of the rescued passengers of the Bermuda-bound steamship Fort Victoria, was the scene of many happy family reunions today.

Husbands had been separated from wives in taking to lifeboats from the rammed steamer and landed in different parts of Manhattan and Staten Island. They all headed for the McAlpin Hotel, however, where the Furness Line had engaged 250 rooms.

One of the reunited couples was Mr. and Mrs. Leo P. Beresin, of North Randolph, a suburb of Philadelphia, enroute to Bermuda on a honeymoon.

Judges Named for Christmas Home Lighting Contest

Mayor Dempsey, Harry Halverson and M. M. Peck Appointed Judges In Lighting Contest—Base Judgement on Beauty, Simplicity and Effectiveness.

Mayor Edgar J. Dempsey, Harry Halverson of the firm of Teller & Halverson, Architects, and M. M. Peck, Electrical Inspector of the Underwriters' Association, have accepted the invitaton of the Electric Service League of Kingston to act as judges in the Christmas Home Lighting Contest. They are all keenly interested in this contest and have expressed great satisfaction that Kingston is continuing the interest shown during the past years in the number of decortated homes and beauty of the displays.

As explained in Wednesday night's Freeman, this Committee of Judges will inspect a few of the best decorated homes in each ward, the names of whose owners will be submitted by preliminary judging committees.

The judging committee will select the best decorated home in each ward for the ward prizes, and will also name the ward having the best general decorations exclusive of any commercial decorative lighting. From the list of ward winners, the judges will select the home which is to be honored by being entered in a national home lighting contest. A special prize will be given to the owner of the home selected as being the best decorated home in Kingston. These prizes will be announced before the official date of opening the contest on December 22.

The preliminary and principal judging committees will base their judgment on beauty, simplicity and effectiveness. It is therefore not necessary, or even desirable, that the displays be lavish or spectecular. This statement is not made to discourage anyone from designing a display that is unique or out of the ordinary, but the experience of past years would indicate that good taste in displays, particularly in relation to the surroundings is an important point to be considered.

Stanley Newkirk Injured in Crash

Tuesday evening an Oldsmobile coupe owned and driven by Stanley Newkirk of this city and a Durant sedan owned by Martin Kopaskie of Wallkill and driven by his daughter, Gertrude, were in collision on the Modena-Newburgh road about four miles south of Modena. At the time there was a very heavy fog which made travel dangerous. Both drivers were alone. The Kopaskie car which was practically new was turned over and it was necessary to rescue Miss Kopaskie through the top. She was uninjured but her car was damaged considerably. Mr. Newkirk suffered from injuries to his back and his car was badly damaged, one wheel being broken off, the front damaged, a spring broken and the frame bent.

Left 75 Cent Tip, Then Stole $2,000

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—Three men after eating a leisurely meal today at Fleisher's restaurant on Broadway, between 97th and 98th street, left a 75-cent tip for the waiter, then held up the cashier and escaped with more than $2,000 in cash.

There were more than 15 after-theatre diners in the place, but the robbers made no attempt to rob them. A bus boy, unaware of what was happening, collided with one of the robbers and was knocked senseless with a blow over the head from a pistol butt. A patrolman in a police automobile who set out in pursuit of the three men was outdistanced.

French War Debt Settled at Last

All But Four Countries Have Completed Settlements. One Government Armenia, Out of Existence.

Washington, Dec. 19 (AP).—President Hoover laid aside today a task he began working upon seven years ago as a member of the World War Foreign Debt Funding Commission.

In affixing his signature to the French debt settlement the chief executive had the satisfaction of bestowing the formal approval of the country upon the last settlement of those worked out by the commission for funding the indebtedness of thirteen natons. Under them, the United States will receive thirteen billion dollars.

That of France included not only funds loaned that country during the World War, but many millions of dollars for surplus war materials sold to her after the conflict ended. The total to be paid by that country over a 62-year period is $8,547,574,104 of which $2,822,674,104 will be paid as interest.

Just before President Hoover came into office, arrangements were made to compromise the Greek war debt, funding of which had not been completed when the commission expired in 1927.

Four other countries have not completed settlements. Russia disavowed the debt contracted by the czarist regime. Austria was granted a moratorium until 1943. A Liberian debt of $30,000 is still on the treasury books, and the Armenian government which owed this country is no longer in existence.

The debts funded by the commission were:

Belgium, $417,780,000.
Czechoslovkia, $115,090,000.
Estonia, $13,830,000.
Finland, $9,000,000.
France, $4,025,000,000.
Great Britian, $4,600,000,000.

Lithuania, $6,030,000.
Poland, $178,560,000.
Rumania, $44,590,000.
Jugo Slavia, $62,859,000.

ADJOURN COURT UNTIL ARRIVAL OF WITNESSES

Supreme Court convened this morning with three cases ready to go to trial. Cases Nos. 392, 393 and 394, in which Eva Gilbert, Emery Price and John C. Pearson are plaintiffs in several actions brought against Adele Conway were announced ready. The cases will be tried together, Cleon B. Murray representing the plaintiffs and William D. Brunnier the defendant.

The attorneys were ready at the opening of court, but several of the witnesses for the plaintiff were unable to be present, because they were coming to the trial from Port Jervis, and the condition of the roads made it impossible for them to drive. Judge Charles E. Nichols adjourned court until the witnesses could be present. They were not present at noon.

DENSE FOG HOLDS UP PASSENGER LINERS

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—A fog so dense that the marine observer at Quarantine reported he was "unable to see the water" hung over New York and the harbor today, seriously hindering navigation.

Four passenger liners were hours late in reporting their positions. The delayed ships were the Atlantic Transport liner Minnewaska, from London; the Cunard liner Franconia, from a West Indies cruise; the Baltic-American liner Lituania and the United Fruit steamer Santa Monica.

The Cunard liner Carinthia, which sailed at 7:30 o'clock last night with 200 passengers for a West Indies cruise, was reported this morning anchored in the channel off New Jersey, unable to proceed because of the fog.

Two Royal Air Fliers Killed in Crash Near Tunis

Tunis, Dec. 19 (AP).—An attempt of two British Royal Air Force aviators to fly 6,000 miles from England to the far southern tip of Africa ended in death on a North African mountainside 30 miles southeast of here.

An Arab reported yesterday afternoon he had seen wreckage of an airplane on a slope known as St. Marie Diuzit. Searching parties were sent out immediately but because of the wild terrain did not locate the wreckage until nightfall.

It was identified easily as the monoplane in which Squadron Commander Jones-Williams and Flight Lieutenant A. H. Jenkins left Cranwell Airdrome at dawn Tuesday intending to make a non-stop flight to Capetown, South Africa. The lateness of the hour when the wreckage was found and bad weather prevented bringing the bodies of the two fliers to Tunis immediately. A detachment of soldiers was left to guard them.

While it was impossible immediately to determine the exact circumstances of the fatal crash it was believed the two airmen had been buffeted severely by a storm which raged in this section of the Mediterranean Tuesday night. It was supposed they lost their way in the darkness, and dashed against the mountain side when they sought a landing.

Until reports of the finding of the wreckage were received fear had increased steadily that the aviators had met with mishap, since they had arranged to communicate every four hours with a land station. Nothing had been heard from them since they reported they were about 10 miles north of Sardinia.

Search continues for another airplane, piloted by the Frenchmen, La Salle, Rebard and Faitot, which is missing in this vicinity. It arrived here Sunday en route from Le Bourget for Saigon, Indo-China. It took off again at 8:45 p. m. for Bengasi. Nothing has been heard of it since.

Santa Will Be Downtown Again

Santa Claus, who arrived downtown last Saturday and received a warm welcome from a large number of little folks will be back Friday and Saturday to talk to children and write down orders for toys requested.

He is preparing to be very busy, so every little boy and girl is requested to be downtown and have a chat with Kris Kringle this week end. Santa advises that very small children be accompanied by their parents, so that they may be well taken care of.

Santa has informed the downtown Business Men's Association that he has received many letters from children of Kingston and vicinity, but is so busy making toys that he will not have time to answer each one individually. He will, however, have something to say to those who wrote to him in a letter which will be published in The Freeman.

Children may write to Santa in care of the Downtown Business Men's Association and the merchants will see that he gets the letters.

Governor Silent on Chandler Report

Albany, Dec. 19 (AP).—Governor Roosevelt devoted the greater part of today to a study of the report of Colonel George F. Chandler on his investigation of the last inmate uprising at Auburn prison. The report of the special investigation made for the governor independent of other inquiries was submitted the governor last night and the executive and his investigator conferred until an early hour this morning.

The governor maintained silence to all questions concerning the nature of the 1,000 word report.

William C. Brewer Found Murdered

Body Found in Ditch Near North Tonawanda Partially Identified as Brother of Mrs. John Tancredi of Saugerties.

The body of the man found murdered in a ditch along the highway about two miles north of North Tonawanda on Tuesday has been partially identified as that of William C. Brewer, a brother of Mrs. John Tancredi of Saugerties.

According to news dispatches the body was found by a boy who was riding a bicycle. The body lay in a ditch covered with ice from the sleet that had fallen the past two days. The clothing was stripped of money and valuables. There were two bullet wounds, one behind the left ear and the other through the neck, either wound, in the opinion of physicians sufficient to have killed him.

The dead man was described as 5 feet 10 inches in height, weight about 155 pounds, with sandy hair, sparse in front, with a tendency to baldness, prominent forehead, hooked nose, high cheek bones, powerful jaw and strong teeth.

Mrs. Tancredi when interviewed over the telephone at her home in Saugerties this morning stated that she did not care to talk about the case as the body had not been positively identified.

"BABY RUTH'S" LUCK DIDN'T HOLD OUT QUITE LONG ENOUGH.

Dallas, Texas, Dec. 19 (AP).—Ruth Barnett, 19 years old and pretty, who said they call her "Baby Ruth" back home in Oklahoma, can either pat herself on the back or kick herself on the shins today—depending on what part of her adventures yesterday her thoughts dwell.

Arraigned on a charge of robbing a filling station, "Baby Ruth" pleaded guilty. She was, she said, hitch hiking "here and there". She was broke and hungry and so talked to a kind, male motorist into aiding her to enter a roadside filling station. Then she was arrested.

The girl's story excited sympathy in court. The jury was instructed to return a verdict of five years suspended sentence. The judge gave her $2. The prosecutor handed her a bill, members of the jury contributed, as did spectators.

Currency in one fist and a certificate of suspended sentence in another, "Baby Ruth" returned to jail to get her personal property.

"Glad to see you," said the jailer. He gave her a telegram from Sheriff Hal Hood of Huntsville:

"Hold Ruth Barnett; wanted here."

WGY TO AID OF EASTERN AND NORTHERN NEW YORK

Schenectady, N. Y., Dec. 19 (AP).—WGY, the General Electric radio station here, today turned over its radio facilities to the cities and villages of eastern and northern New York which have been cut off from all communication with the rest of the state by the breaking of miles of wires under a heavy load of ice.

The station broadcast an announcement offering to relay any important messages from the isolated points to the outside. Instructions were issued to all persons having such messages to take them to the nearest amateur radio operator, asking him to send them to WGY on 40 and 80-meter wave lengths.

In communicating with amateur operators in the stricken area, WGY will use a 139.5 meter wave.

The offer was extended also to newspaper correspondents in the isolated section desiring to reach their papers, but station officials urged that the facilities be used only for really important messages and that such be kept as brief as possible.

Storms and Bitter Cold Over Entire Country

Many Deaths Caused By Gales, Ice and Low Temperatures — Blizzard Sweeps Across the Midwest — Snow In New Orleans — Heavy Damage Reported In Northern New York.

(By The Associated Press)

If many receiving sets whistled, it was the wind; wind that raced at express train speed across the prairies and lashed the lakes to fury. If the announcer seemed to speak sharply, crisply, it was the sub-zero and near zero temperatures, that reached from Canada to Dixie, and from the Rockies to New England. If the broadcast was tragic, it was the dozen or more deaths caused by gales, ice and low temperatures.

Winter became a magician who dipped his hand into Medicine Hat, Canada, where weather breeds, and drew forth nearly every kind calculated to cause discomfort, disorder and distress. Blinding blizzards, sweeping across the midwest ahead of a train of under-zero cold; snows coating the highways with the traffic hazard of ice; sleet, snow and gales over much of the Dominion of Canada; and snow, even, in New Orleans, which had not seen it for years.

Dixie felt the cold especially, for it came on the heels of unusually warm weather. Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia watched mercuries drop to the twenties. Only in the Atlantic coastal states of Virginia and the Carolinas was the temperature seasonal, ranging in the fifties.

Ontario, the eastern states and New England counted the cost of a crust of ice that levelled miles of communication lines and scrambled transportation. New York and Boston among eastern cities escaped the wintriness from which most of the country suffered. But they wallowed in fog.

The southwest was so cold that stockmen had a problem in providing shelter for their cattle. In Texas a hunter froze to death when pitched into an icy stream.

Sub-zero readings were so numerous that they had to be in the minus twenties to earn a place in the news. Saco, Mont., crackled in a temperature of 36 degrees below zero. Williston, N. D., was only two degrees less frigid, and Devil's Lake in the same state was 32 degrees in the red.

Christmas trade over a wide area was seriously interrupted. In many middle west cities, including Chicago, Milwaukee, the Twin Cities, Detroit, and St. Louis the weather was held to blame for keeping many potential shoppers indoors.

The general forecast for today was without cheer, auguring clearing skies but continued and—for the middle west and portions of the east—more severe cold.

Heavy Damage Reported Upstate

Large Sections of Western and Northern New York Cut Out From Outside Communication—Traffic Hazardous.

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—A sheet of ice covered much of New England and northern New York today, disrupting transportation and cutting off many communities from telephone and telegraph communication.

Warmer temperatures along the coast ports of New York, Boston and Providence resulted in heavy fogs which hampered shipping and completely shut down the port of Providence.

Large sections of western and northern New York were cut off from outside communication as miles of telephone and telegraph wires snapped beneath the weight of heavy ice formed by a sudden breeze after nearly 24 hours of rain. Repair crews labored to restore service.

Automobiles in many places were abandoned by the occupants, who turned pedestrians as a slower but safer method of reaching their destinations. Thousands of trees were broken down by the weight of the ice.

In Buffalo falling trees and branches littered the highways to such an extent that a special meeting of the common council was called by the mayor to vote an appropriation of $50,000 for use in removing the debris. Trees and branches also littered streets in Saratoga Springs, Ballston Spa and Schenectady.

Rochester, N. H., and nearby towns were without light for more than an hour when two wires carrying the main current broke under the onslaught of snow, sleet and rain.

Automobile traffic became so hazardous in New England that several roads were closed, while at other places motorists who could not keep their windshields clear of ice were ordered to abandon their cars. Some drivers placed lighted candles back of the windshields to prevent the rain from freezing.

In Boston a fog described as the worst of the season delayed shipping, but all vessels were able to make port. In Providence harbor, however, all shipping came to a standstill. Ships that left the port were forced to anchor and inbound ships were unable to dock.

The snow and sleet storm extended as far north as Maine. Many automobiles accidents occurred throughout the state.

A heavy fog hung over all Pennsylvania. Highway patrolmen directed traffic at hills and dangerous curves. Motorists were unable to see more than 20 feet ahead due to the heavy mist.

Foggy Weather Delays Steamers

Owing to the heavy fog on the Hudson river, navigation has been delayed. The steamer Odell, of the Hudson River Steamboat Company, was unable to make the trip up the river Wednesday night, owing to the fog, and in order that service might not be interrupted the steamer Cohoes, of the Hudson River Night Line, was pressed into service and made the run in the place of the Odell. The Cohoes steamed into the Rondout creek during the night and left this afternoon for New York.

Towing on the river is slackening up, and the towing season is about ended.

Mrs. George Kellerhouse of 103 North Front street and Mrs. Isabel Ludlow of 128 North Front street, are confined to the Kingston Hospital with injuries sustained about 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon when they were struck by an automobile driven by Frank Klothe of R. F. D. No. 4. Mr. Klothe was turning from North Front street into Green street when his car struck the women who were on the crosswalk. An X-ray will be taken today at the hospital to ascertain the extent of the injuries received by the women.

Ten Dead in Chicago Area

Deaths Attributed to Exposure. Falls and Accidents Due to the Blinding Blizzard—Million Dollar Transportation Damage.

Chicago, Dec. 19 (AP).—Winter, with stinging gales, snow and zero temperatures, had the middle and northwest in its grasp today.

Ten persons were dead in the Chicago metropolitan area, the deaths being variously attributed to exposure, falls and accidents due to the blinding blizzard.

Chicago's storm-harassed lake front took another pummelling from the pile-driving waters. Motorists brave enough to challenge the storm alternately had to contend with glassy pavements and the drifted snow. By nightfall last night the principal drives were marked by stalled or abandoned machines.

It was much the same everywhere in the middle west. Every road out of Springfield, Ill., was blocked by snow in which were stalled scores of motorcars.

There were minus readings on the thermometer almost everywhere in the northwest, with Williston, North Dakota, with 34 below zero the coldest recording. Winnipeg with minus 28 and Medicine Hat, where it was 24 below, were cold spots across the international line.

Communication lines were hard hit, but generally they withstood the weather much better than had been expected. Trains were moving hours late, but the fliers of the United States mail, with only scattered exceptions, remained on the ground.

The storm damage to Chicago's transportation systems yesterday was estimated by Captain Frank Matchett of the police traffic division at $1,000,000. More than 300 street cars were derailed by the snow.

Commissioner at Evanston, Ill., said the storm on the lake was one of the worst they had ever seen. All ships, so far as was known, were in harbor.

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

The SOS which took all of the eastern seaboard broadcasters off the air from shortly after 5 o'clock until after 7:30 Wednesday evening caused many fans to think that their sets were out of commission and many of them sent in SOS calls of their own. Those who heard the announcement or who tuned in on WGY or WBZ had no worries. The Amos and Andy admirers were, however, hit hard.

There will be something for everyone on Erno Rapee's Musical Christmas Tree when the 55-piece Mobiloil Concert Orchestra broadcasts over the NBC System on Christmas night. For the children there will be Victor Herbert's "March from the Babes in Toyland" and Rapee's "Monkey Hop," both of which the "grown ups" also will enjoy. For those of a romantic turn of mind James Melton, tenor, will sing "Hills of Home" by Fox. For the older folks and those who enjoy music of a deeper and more serious character, the Mobiloil Orchestra will play Godard's compelling "Adagio Pathetique."

That dramatic episode in the career of Alexander the Great when one of his Macedonian generals plots to overthrow the world conqueror will be enacted for the radio audience in the eleventh Heroes of the World program under auspices of the Durant Motors which will be broadcast by the National Broadcasting Company and 37 affiliated stations on Sunday evening, December 22, at 7 p. m.

Two events of musical importance have been arranged for the Atwater-Kent Radio Hour for the evening of December 22, the beginning of Christmas week. William van Hoogstraaten, world famous director of symphony orchestras, will direct the Atwater Kent Concert Orchestra for the first half of the concert—being the fourth of the great directors presented this season in the Atwater Kent Radio Hour. During the last half of the program four well known opera and concert stars will sing a special arrangement of Humperdinck's opera, "Hansel and Gretel," based on the fairy tale of "Babes in the Woods."

Radio fans will be entertained for another year by the Dutch Master Minstrels, according to an announcement issued by the Consolidated Cigar Corporation, sponsors of the program. The new 52-week contract, which goes into effect on December 28, calls for a change of broadcasting day from Tuesday to Saturday at 9:30 p. m. There will be no performance on Tuesday, December 24. The new year will see the cast of the minstrels intact, with Al Bernard and Paul Dumont, end-men, carrying the humor, assisted by Carson Robinson and his "hill-billy" songs. Musical specialties will be in the hands of Harold Branch, Darl Bethman, and the quartette, the Dutch Masters.

The Christmas season furnishes the inspiration for the Old Company Songalogue, which will be heard through WEAF and associated stations on Sunday at 6:30 p. m. Yule carols, handed down from time immemorial, will be featured by the quartette, composed of Charles Harrison, Lambert Murphy, Vernon Archibald, and Frank Croxton. Arthur Leonard, pianist, and a harp, violin, and cello trio will accompany the Old Company Singers.

Tells How Fat Men Can Lose Half a Pound a Day

Here's a simple way to get rid of that corporation and quickly feel in both body and mind the joy of living.

Start taking Kruschen Salts—that's the common-sense way to reduce—but don't take them with the idea that they possess reducing qualities in themselves.

It's the safe way, too—for every day you continue this easy method of losing unwanted and unneeded flesh you'll gain in energy, vigor and endurance.

Nine times in ten obesity means inactivity—it means that your blood is starving for the six vital salts your internal organs need to keep you youthful, active, ambitious and keen in mind.

When you take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts every morning in a glass of hot or cold water you get these six vital salts which modern foods and cooking do not supply.

This is what they do—they clean out the impurities in your blood by keeping the bowels, kidneys and liver in splendid working shape and give you with a vigor and tireless energy you'd most forgotten had existed.

The urge for activity will be so marked that even at the end of a hard day's work you'll feel ready for any social activity or recreation—you can play as hard as you work.

And after two weeks your excess flesh starts to go—you'll know it—feel it—see it—the scales will tell the story.

As one, once corpulent man remarked—"I feel so energetic that I want to get up with the lark and I'm just as lively as a cricket."

Kruschen Salts is not a purgative or a cathartic, but a real system conditioner and for those who are the victims of constipation or toxemia its daily use soon means blissful regularity.

Get an 85 cent bottle of Kruschen Salts—last 4 weeks—at McBride Drug Stores or any druggist in the world.

ON REARING CHILDREN from CRIB TO COLLEGE

By Philip Dexter Roberts

Obedience is not an end in itself. It is only a means through which we attain greater efficiency and happiness. It is not merely a series of responses, considered satisfactory by parents, to varied situations which are constantly being presented by the child's environment. It is a more complicated conduct pattern which has become part of the individual's personality and which prompts him to react adequately to all stimuli arising from both within and without.

A Parent-Teacher association can be 100 per cent helpful to the school, but too often it concerns itself with activities that are none of its affairs, or that duplicate the work of existing organizations.

If we want our children to be entirely truthful we adults will have to take to more truth-telling ourselves. The place for the perplexed mother to start with a deceitful child is herself. Let her perfect herself in not lying to him.

Small boys and girls will welcome the news that irradiated ice cream may be used as a cure for rickets and may even be substituted for cod-liver oil in treating or preventing that disease of childhood, according to the Department of Dairy Husbandry of Rutgers college. "Certain foods can be rendered valuable in the prevention and treatment of rickets by exposing these foods to the effect of rays from an ultra-violet lamp," says the report. "Ice cream was exposed with favorable results. It is also an interesting fact that cereals, milk and egg yolk have been irradiated successfully.

It is now a well known fact that human beings are susceptible to color and that their moods are frequently influenced by certain hues. Drab colors, such as taupe and mulberry have depressing effect in a room, and vivid colors, such as scarlet and bright blue may be over-stimulating. In choosing a color scheme for the home in which there are children, these points must be considered, as well as the matter of durability.

The intelligent mother never caresses the new baby if the older child is there without a loving word to him as well. Make it quite clear that it is only the helplessness of the new life—not a greater love—that accounts for the baby's getting so much more time and attention. The demand of the older child for emotional safeguard is of great importance. So often mothers pour out their love on the nonunderstanding new baby and withhold their sympathy where it is desperately needed by the older child.

Many pediatricians and modern educators oppose ballet dancing for children because of the softness and pliability of little bones, and the strain imposed upon them by ballet technique. All ballet steps are performed with out-turned legs—in fact that is the basis of the entire ballet form. These leg positions when carried into every day life produce an ugly, unnatural walk.

Double Duty Dress Is Worth the Investment

The successful double-duty business dress depends on keen smartness of line and the good quality of the fabric, says the Woman's Home Companion. The novice and the inexperienced may be festively frilly at nine o'clock in the morning. The woman who knows fits into the picture back of her desk as perfectly in her dining-out theater-going frock as she does in the tweed that catches the 5:40 four evenings a week. Her double duty dress may be crepe satin or velvet. Paris skirt laps front over the back at the sides and dips just a little. Complete it with circular inserts front and back. The upper is plain and smooth except for tucks at the sides above the lap of the skirt.

Tweeds and Jerseys

Woolen dresses and ensembles in such fabrics as light and heavyweight tweeds and striped jerseys are in the limelight in the new models.

BOOTLEGGED TREES.

It would appear that Russians of the old-fashioned type will this year have to purchase their Christmas trees from lawless bootleggers and shut their windows tight before they venture to light candles attached to the branches. A cable from Moscow dated December 19 states that the Soviet authorities have issued orders prohibiting stores from selling Christmas trees or toys and from displaying Yuletide articles in show windows, that persons cutting or selling Christmas trees will be prosecuted, and that the police have been ordered to arrest any one found bringing them into the city. Moreover, all the employed will be expected to work the usual hours on Christmas day. In furtherance of the government's anti-religious policy bells have already been removed from many churches to be melted down for industrial purposes. Nevertheless the church authorities have dared to call on the people to observe Christmas day as of old. So there will be both "bootlegged" Christmas trees and much strife, possibly even inside the churches.

The Soviet authorities, who appear to regard themselves as benignant as well as all-wise, plan to bless the children on Christmas day with "anti-religious movies and concerts." The latter will be serviceable in their way, for Russian music of the higher type is in the world's front rank, but we may be sure that normal boys and girls would greatly prefer the old-time Christmas festivities. As for the "anti-religious movies," the church people of Russia doubtless have good reason to expect them to be appallingly blasphemous. What will the people of Russia be like thirty-odd years hence, now that the rising generation is being converted into godless and perhaps heartless little intellectual machines?

AN OLD FRAUD.

The State Department has issued a warning to the public against swindlers offering credulous persons the hope of getting a fortune due them now held "in Chancery." This warning was prompted by the fact that the American Consul General in London is being "deluged" with letters from persons in this country who have been convinced by clever confidence men that they are heir to old English "estates" held by the British authorities for lack of claimants. All that is needed, they are told, is to contribute money to capable agents so that the business may be put through to their great advantage. In addition to the warning from our State Department, an official announcement has been made from London that there are no such unclaimed "estates" waiting for American heirs and that there are no fortunes of any considerable size still in Chancery.

The difficulty is that many of the credulous will not hear of either the London announcement or the State Department's warning, and so will remain exposed to the wiles of a very efficient class of swindlers. The Drake family of America is mentioned among the victimized. People of that name have been called together in a given community and told that they are descendants of Sir Francis Drake, who in Queen Elizabeth's time plundered many Spanish ships and towns and accumulated vast spoils. An immense fortune thence derived is alleged to be still intact awaiting the proper claimants, and the American Drakes can divide billions if they will only finance the proper defender of their rights. Although this fraud has been exposed, there are still said to be credulous Drakes liable to be victimized.

WET AND "DRY" STATES.

Though very "dry" in theory, most of the southern states are very "wet" in fact—if the figures published by the Prohibition Commissioner are correct. In his report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929, Dr. Doran shows that in the number of distilleries seized by Federal officers Georgia led all the states with no less than 2,702—which recalls the fact that Senator Harris of that "extra-dry" commonwealth wanted the appropriation for Volstead enforcement made $24,000,000 large. In North Carolina 1,999 stills were seized—which may or may not explain why Senator Simmons lifted his hands in holy horror against the election as president of a man with the liberal views of Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

A similar story is told by the Prohibition Commissioner of other "dry" southern states. In Tennessee 1,253 distilleries were seized; in Virginia, 1,216; in South Carolina, 782; in Texas, 672—and so on. In New York, on the other hand, a state the southern prohibitionists seem to regard as a very sink of iniquity—only 301 distilleries were seized, notwithstanding its immense population. In New York, too, there was only one Federal arrest to every 1,252 persons, while in Kentucky there was one Federal arrest to every 640 persons, and in the southern district of New York the percentage of convictions was 81.6, while in Georgia it was only 69.03. Therefore it would look as if the boastfully "dry" and ardently prohibitionist southern states need to do a lot of sweeping before their own doors before they undertake to point an outraged and warning finger at a State of more liberal views yet on the whole more law-abiding in practice.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

BY

James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act)

HOT AND COLD APPLICATIONS.

You have a pain in the stomach or in the abdomen and the first thought is usually to apply heat in some form.

As this usually gives relief you may use heat for almost any pain about the body.

Drs. Muller and Holsher of Berlin have been experimenting upon animals, upon healthy individuals, and upon patients, and they find that when heat is applied to the skin over the stomach or other abdominal organs that these organs become less active in every way; that is less blood flows into them and they do less work, manufacture less juice and so forth.

Cold applications have the opposite effect as it was found that they actually stimulated the stomach and other organs to contract and to manufacture more juice, and these juices were richer, more highly concentrated than normal.

Thus the idea then of applying heat to the abdomen would be to rest the internal organs.

This is the reason that in cases where there is excessive action such as in vomiting or diarrhoea, hot applications are so soothing to the patient. These hot applications lessen the number and strength of the contractions and it is these contractions that cause the pain.

However where there is a pain in the muscles or joints, that is the outer part of the body, and the skin, hot applications have the effect of increasing action by dilating or enlarging the blood vessels and thus causing an increased amount of blood to come to the surface.

This increased flow carries away the waste products that are causing the pain.

It is these wastes, manufactured by work, or by injury, that must be swept away in the circulation in order to give relief.

The thought then is that where you want activity of abdominal organs, as in constipation, cold applications are advisable; where relief from pain is wanted you use hot applications.

On the other hand as pain, stiffness, soreness, or loss of motion in skin, muscles or joints, means that the damage has been done, that the waste products are lying there, hot water should be always used for strains, sprains, or bruises and so forth. Cold water should not be used, as it "slows up" the circulation. A good circulation is necessary to wash the products from the part.

The Secret of Mohawk Bend

Abigail Prescott, heiress of the Mohawk Bend estate, is to be married to Peggy Prescott, related by marriage to Anne Sinclair Evans with whose love he pities. Peggy senses this discovery with the gift of July and on his Stein pretends Stephen with the treacherous lover of the sister of Simon Jameson Sinclair wanted to relieve Herbert Prescott's estate if Peggy forfeits her rights. Philander Chase executor of Prescott's will visits Peggy to tell her that of the vast estate left by her uncle only Yew Lodge remains.

Chapter 11.

HER HOUSE OF CARDS

THE shock of the news stunned Peggy and Philander Chase looked at her sympathetically. Her fortune vanished or at least that part of it with which she had planned to make her father and mother happy in their declining years.

A moment of silence and then Peggy looked up, anxious for further details.

"When did you discover this, Mr. Chase?"

"When I was making an appraisal of the estate for my report to the probate court. So that you will understand, perhaps I better start at the beginning.

"As I told you when I saw you in New York, your uncle was a very wealthy man. When he retired, he placed a small fortune in building and furnishing this place. After it was built, he turned all other real estate holdings into negotiable securities. These he put into a lock box in his vault in the Guarantee Trust company in New York. I was not only present but as official of the bank, the vice-president to be exact, was present also.

"Well?" questioned Peggy; her throat felt dry and parched. "Go on, please."

"Prescott's fortune was estimated, then, and we have a list of the securities, at more than $1,000,000.

"Thursday, in the presence of an official from the registrar of wills' office, and the vice-president of the bank, I opened the safe deposit box and found not one security—not so much as a dime."

Peggy eyed Chase in despair.

"But," she exclaimed, "Uncle must have put the securities in another bank."

"His will, Miss Prescott, states that in that box would be found all his earthly possessions," broke in Chase, "and the will, remember, was drawn up two months before his death."

"But then, some one must have broken into the box—gained access to it in some way—by trickery—forgery," as Chase shook his head.

"Utterly impossible," he declared, with disheartening firmness. "A thief could as well break into the Rock of Gibraltar as get into a safe deposit box in the vaults of that company. Besides," he paused and took an envelope from his pocket; from it he withdrew a slip of paper. "This paper was lying in Prescott's box—all that it contained. Read it, Miss Prescott."

Peggy stared at her uncle's legible handwriting:

"The Lord giveth, and the Lord taketh away; blessed be the name of the Lord."

She repeated the quotation in a hushed voice.

"Oh, Mr. Chase, what does it mean?" she asked. "Was Uncle—?"

"Mad? I presume so." He looked at her pityingly. "I was most reluctant to tell you this—"

"Oh, but it was right to do so," quickly. "I—" she swallowed hard. "It's hard to comprehend."

"Surely; to have a fortune slip away," he sighed. "It's devilish tough, Miss Prescott."

Peggy closed her eyes; Chase must not, should not see the blinding tears. Oh, the man did not know how dreadful it was; her plans for her father—her invalid mother—and Jim. Chase's voice came to her from far off—what was that he was saying? Gamely, desperately, she pulled herself together.

"There's no telling what your uncle did with the securities," he began; "thrown them in the river—given them away piecemeal—to churches; you know he went dippy on religion after his wife's death."

"I wasn't aware of it. Poor Uncle Herbert." She drew a long, long breath. "Is there no way to trace the securities?"

"I've called in Pinkerton detectives," answered Chase. "We plan a consultation with the bank officials on Monday—I'd like you to be in New York then."

"Oh, but I can't leave here for more than an hour, until after the seventeenth of June," she exclaimed. "It's the anniversary of my father's New Lodge."

Chase regarded her curiously. "I believe any court would excuse your absence on such an errand," he explained patiently, "and that it would not invalidate your claim to the inheritance under the will, which, if your uncle was mad, would be set aside anyway."

Peggy stared at him. "And who would inherit then?"

"Your uncle's next of kin—"

"That's father," interrupted Peggy; she hesitated.

"You are sure the property would not go to Commander Sinclair if the will was set aside or broken?"

"Quite sure; Sinclair is Prescott's wife's relative, and she predeceased her husband."

Chase rose with some abruptness.

"However, before I send for you on Monday—and I'll phone the exact hour of the meeting that afternoon in time for you to reach the trust company—I will consult an eminent lawyer, E. H. Blair, regarding your uncle's will and ask if your absence for such a cause will jeopardize your inheritance. Now I must go."

"Can't you wait for supper? Julia, my maid, will be back shortly."

"Your maid is out?"

Chase put the question with a quick, nervous twist of his head. He drew a step nearer, a queer gleam in his eyes.

"Miss Prescott, I—"

Bang, went the knocker on the front door—a second time its imperative summons echoed through the house before Peggy recovered sufficiently from her surprise to answer it. Obadiah Evans faced her on the threshold.

"Howdy," he exclaimed heartily. "I've brought the milk and cream; sorry it didn't get here this morning but Jim and I were both away and Deborah forgot to remind Simon. Let me carry the pails to the kitchen; they're heavy."

And he stepped into the room.

Peggy closed the front door and followed him toward the dining room.

"Wait, Mr. Evans," she exclaimed. "Have you met Mr. Philander Chase?"

Deliberately Obadiah transferred both pails to one hand before facing the other man.

"I heard Mr. Prescott talk about you," he said, extending a huge hand, "and I know your brother; 'taint any doubt you being twins," regarding Chase closely.

"Our mother had difficulty telling us apart."

Chase rubbed his hands together, this time tenderly to feel his fingers which still felt the pressure of Obadiah's grip.

"I'll say she had." Obadiah chuckled. "We missed meeting at Phelps' Tavern last night."

Chase smiled wryly.

"I'd have been wiser had I stayed there instead of trying to make Stone Tower; as it was I stopped overnight at Goshen and then missed Aquila this morning."

"Sure; he was down my way, so Debby said." Obadiah clicked the pails together. "Soon's I put these in the kitchen, I'll take you back with me."

"But I must return to Stone Tower—"

"It's bad going over Mohawk pass after last night's rain," broke in Obadiah, quickly. "Besides, Debby said your brother left word he'd be back—"

"In that case," Chase turned to Peggy as Obadiah disappeared into the pantry; "I'll go with Mr. Evans. I'll get in touch with you without fail. Don't worry," he held her hand in a firm clasp, "and, above all, keep your own counsel."

The advice was given in little above a whisper and Obadiah failed to catch it on reentering the room.

"I'm ready, now, Mr. Evans," and snatching up his hat Chase accompanied the farmer out of the front door.

Peggy watched them go, giving but a mechanical reply to Obadiah's last words, then closed the door. Half across the room, she stopped and picked up the slip of paper found in her uncle's safe deposit box.

Dropping down on a chair in front of his desk, she again read with dazed, bewildered eyes the message upon it:

"The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away. Blessed be the name of the Lord."

Suddenly her head fell forward on the desk and her overcharged feelings found vent in a burst of tears—her inheritance was but a house of cards.

Always a Good Joke

The story about the Irishman who exclaimed: "I don't like lettuce, and I'm glad I don't like it, for if I liked it I'd eat it and I hate the dom'd stuff," is apparently based on an entry in the "Intimate Diary" of George Sand—made nearly 100 years ago—which reads: "I'm glad I don't care for spinach, for if I liked it I should eat it, and I cannot bear spinach."—Boston Globe.

CHRISTMAS MUSICAL SERVICE AT RONDOUT PRESBYTERIAN.

At a special 4:30 o'clock candlelight vesper service on Sunday, December 22, Matthew's beautiful cantata, "The Story of Christmas", will be given by the choir of the Rondout Presbyterian Church, assisted by a number of additional voices, including a double male quartet. It is eminently fitting that this should be sung on the Sunday beginning the Christmas season. The cantata is one of great beauty and harmony and describes the coming of the Christ Child and what His coming has meant to the world. The solos and choruses for men's voices are particularly impressive.

The soloists are Mrs. Ralph Glendenning, Miss Harriet A. Spink, Miss Los Kamp, Ralph O. Martin, August Franz, William Raible and Leonard H. Stine. The public is cordially invited to attend this service.

HAPPY to own it

PROUD to show it

Really, you can't blame her. Who wouldn't drag her friends out into the kitchen to show off her new General Electric Refrigerator? There it stands, gleaming white, strong as a safe, incredibly quiet.

For a gift that gives all-year usefulness, that makes every-day tasks lighter, that safeguards health, the General Electric is really ideal. It makes a generous supply of ice cubes and freezes those luscious desserts which every hostess enjoys serving.

When you buy a General Electric you are choosing the one and only electric refrigerator which has an all-steel cabinet. And all the mechanism is hermetically sealed in a steel casing mounted on top . . . out of the way, dust-proof, never needs oiling . . . . leaving the greatest cabinet area for food storage. It has an accessible freezing regulator which allows you to control freezing-speeds. It causes no radio interference.

For a record of performance, can any other refrigerator equal this . . . . 350,000 in use and no owner has spent a single dollar for repairs or service? When you are deciding on the gift that will best serve the whole family, consider the sound value which the General Electric Refrigerator offers and remember that special payments can readily be arranged.

If you like really good music tune in on the General Electric Hour broadcast every Saturday evening.

Icy Glare Over Streets and Walks

Rain fell in Kingston all day Wednesday and that night the temperature dropped with the result that this morning householders when they awoke found the streets and walks a glare of ice. Walking was very dangerous and even cars equipped with chains had to be driven carefully to avoid accidents.

Superintendent Mills of the board of public works had his trucks out early loaded with sand which was used in sanding the hills about the city to make them safe for traffic.

ADULTS RIVAL YOUTH SEEKING EDUCATION

Mother and Father Have Gone Back to School.

Washington.—Mother and father have gone back to school.

The urge for education to keep apace with the younger generation of today has infected adults, according to Miss E. Ruth Pyrtle, president of the National Education association.

"People don't have to work as many hours each day as they did years ago and therefore more leisure time is devoted to study," Miss Pyrtle said. "And there is no age limit to education; the elder set learns as rapidly as the youth."

Miss Pyrtle pointed out that a survey made in 3,000 communities showed 300,000 adults had enrolled in schools for various courses this winter. These grownups are taking subjects ranging from homemaking to medicine and law.

Meantime the younger generation is moving ahead, educationally speaking, at a rate much faster than did their parents. Youths of today have profited by the experiences of their parents and grasp what they are taught in a shorter time than was necessary a decade ago, Miss Pyrtle said.

Better Discipline.

Youths of today are more easily disciplined and have better habits and have brighter ideals, Miss Pyrtle said.

"The younger generation really appear more intelligent than their forefathers. They are keener and visualize an entire world, while 40 years ago they could see but a community.

"But the three R's are still the fundamental basis for education of both the old and the young. More time is consumed teaching, reading, writing and arithmetic in schools than is allocated to other subjects.

"Art, music, science, literature, geography and history are also essential in the curriculum, for youths must have at least a smattering of these to cope with the modern problems of today.

"Character education and vocational training are also coming to the fore as essential subjects of education. Teachers are realizing that in many cases it is well to specialize on some subjects for individuals best adapted to them."

More Problems to Meet.

Miss Pyrtle pointed out that youths of today have more problems to meet than those of a generation ago, and that they must face more problems and attractions that break into their studies.

The educational expert said youths of today had many "foolish habits," but these did not retard their ability to learn.

"The use of cosmetics in a classroom often causes the pupil to lose an important point while applying a lipstick or powdering the nose. But such habits can be overlooked, as they are natural and teachers remember that they, too, had habits while attending school.

"All in all the younger generation must be modern to keep apace with the times. They are quicker thinkers and better observers than the youths of yesteryear. With the airplane, telephone, radio and other modern devices they just have to be."

Lost Music Masterpiece Found in Old Salesroom

Vienna.—An oratorium "Stabat Mater" by Cornelius, which had been lost for eighty years, has recently been found in a drawer of an antique writing desk which was put up to auction in a Vienna salesroom. The oratorium, which is said to be one of the best church compositions of the great musician, will be performed in the Salzburg cathedral.

LIGHTS of NEW YORK
by GRANT DILLON

A Western Man Master

I had a talk with Frank J. Norfleet the other night—Norfleet being the man who trailed down one of the biggest gangs of confidence men that ever operated in this country. Norfleet is a little man, well over sixty, but quick as a panther in a rough-and-tumble fight and lightning with the gun, as the confidence men found in the course of several personal encounters. He was a Texas ranchman a few years ago, with no thought of man hunting. Confidence men "took him" for $45,000 and Norfleet started on their trail. One by one he ran them down and secured convictions. He was instrumental in the imprisonment of thirty-four confidence men altogether, but expenses cost him $30,000 besides the $45,000 he lost in the first place.

Norfleet tells a story about going into the office of a great detective in New York. The "master mind" looked Norfleet over and said:

"I've heard a lot about you, Mr. Norfleet, and often wondered how you did such wonderful work, but now I understand it."

"How's that?" asked Norfleet.

"It's because of your insignificant appearance," said the great detective pompously, handing out the prize package of left-handed compliments.

The Old Home Town

I was in the office of a friend who roused my interest by tossing an unopened newspaper package into the wastebasket. Something in the way he did it must have made me look my curiosity, because he explained:

"That's a boom edition of a paper from my old home town—a paper that I worked on as a cub reporter when I was a kid back in the Middle West. I wouldn't open and read it for money. 'Cause why? Because the old town that I loved has grown into a big city. I could read that paper through and not see a dozen names that I am familiar with. If they did run a picture of some old pal of mine who is now president of a bank or head of the Rotary club, or something like that, he'd look so old that it would make me feel blue. Of course I'd look just as old to him if he should run across my picture. I like to think of the old burg just as it was when the swimmin' hole was only half a mile from the center of town. They've got golf links or something of that sort there now. That's why many a New Yorker like myself doesn't look at his home paper when he gets one. It isn't lack of sentiment. On the contrary, it's just too darn much sentiment."

Follows Instructions

Several years ago a cub reporter in Chicago received his first assignment from the city editor. It was to go to the Congress hotel in that city, and, in newspaper parlance, "get the hotel register." Of course, what that meant was the reporter was to make a list of the prominent guests at the hotel for publication in the paper. In half an hour or so, he returned, out of breath, carrying the register, with this remark:

"I had a tough time getting it but here it is. They even had it nailed down and chased me for three blocks."

The Successful Man's Worry

Many prominent men believe success is only the flicker of an eyelash, a break of the game. I was talking to a well-known banker the other day and he made this enlightening and modest remark:

"I'll bet a lot of wealthy and conspicuously successful men, if they are honest with themselves, sometimes wonder how they have gotten to the positions they hold and how long they can keep the secret of their shortcomings."

Safety First

When Richard Washburn Child was American ambassador to Italy, a well-known fiery gentleman in the United States army was a visitor and attended a social function in Rome, where the wine of the country was in abundance. One of Mussolini's aides was also a guest and was introduced to the general. He did not look like an Italian and he spoke English without an accent, so that the army officer, of course, thought he was an American.

In discussing Italy the general was quite frank. Apparently he did not have a very high regard for the attainments of the Italians. He summed up his statements with the remark:

"The trouble with the wops is they can't ride, they can't fly, and they can't shoot."

The American ambassador overheard this summary, was very much embarrassed and dispatched the offending general out of the country without delay before Mussolini could hear about it.

Golfers Flee as Cobbler Goes Hunting in Park

New York.—A charge of bird shot whizzed over the Van Cortlandt Park links recently. Golfers fled or threw themselves on the ground and Anthony Lastino, a shoemaker was arrested. Armed with a double-barreled shotgun, cartridge belt and hunting license, he was found in the wooded area northeast of the park looking for wild ducks, pheasants or other game. Magistrate Richard F. McKinley fined him $25.

ACCORD.

Accord, Dec. 19.—Owing to the busy holiday season, the regular monthly meeting, social and dinner of the Country Woman's Club of Accord M. E. Church will be eliminated for the month of December. However, they will be continued as usual, beginning with January.

Flapper Bandit Quits Prison With Earnings

Bakersfield, Calif.—Eleanor Walling, flapper bandit convicted here five years ago of bank robbery, has been released from San Quentin penitentiary on parole. A violin player, former vaudeville performer and expert needlewoman, Eleanor left the gate guarding the gambler pile of stone with a smile, her violin and a package of her needlework, delicate and surprisingly intricate in design, under her arm. She had just told good-by to Clara Phillips, with whom she had worked and engaged in amateur theatricals at the prison in the women's ward.

In the warden's office she received quite a sum of money. During the five years in prison she had created beautiful things of fine linen and many pieces of her needlework had been purchased here. The money was saved for her.

Dog Has an Operation in Hospital for People

Omaha, Neb.—Having suffered an injury to his left front leg that involved amputation, a St. Bernard dog belonging to Mrs. Morris Gross was taken by her to a hospital for human beings and the amputation was performed by a surgeon assisted by regulation nurses. The dog will be supplied with an artificial leg, its mistress said.

Holiday Adjustment Bur.

All merry is the Christmas life,
Persisting no distress,
He buys his wife a nice new pipe
And she buys him a dress.

Whatever else may be said about the Christmas seal, it certainly sticks to its program.....some sticker!

She: "Where in the world did you get that horrible necktie?"
He: "The lassie on the 'You' gave it to me last Christmas."

Money that goes Health is never ill spent for Christmas Health Seals.

THE DISCONSOLATE RHYMER

I thought I'd write you how bright the snow
Glitters beneath the moon
And I meant to emphasize also
That Christmas is coming soon.
In fact, I meant to fill the verse
With the happy spirit of Christmas.
But alas! I couldn't have chosen worse,
Because nothing rhymes but "Mathmus".

I intended to mention the Eastern Star
And the merry yuletide chime,
But I stopped before I had got that far,
For the lack of a single rhyme.
So in case you wonder why I have failed,
You can lay the blame on "Christmas",
For I searched till that moon and that same star paled,
And there isn't a rhyme but "Mathmus".

Have mercy on the poor post office clerks; do your Christmas carding early.

"It is more blessed to give than receive," but Dad found out that the cost is the same.

Many Christmas presents are not gifts—they're bribes.

He: "You say you don't believe in evolution?"
She: "I certainly don't."
He: "Well, how about the cigaret that has developed from a coffin nail into a cough drop?"

Some folks are born ugly and some of them go in for freak styles.

Becky? "Do you really lofe me, Isaac?"
Isaac: "Vat a kvestion. Don't I let you sit on my lap and spoil the creases from my pants?"

If you are Scotch don't boast about it—you are wasting your breath.

New Hired Man: "Well, now, what time do I have to git to work mornings?"
Farmer Fumblegate: "Any time you like, so's it ain't later than half past four in the morning."

You are probably so conceited you believe a sign "Stay Out. This Means You," means everybody else but you.

Flicker Fanny, our movie-going girl friend submits: "In The Sweet Buy and Buy," to be used as the theme song in the picture "Modern Marriage."

He glanced at the beautiful woman beside him, his look heavy with anxiety and humble pleading. But she was unconscious of his appeal.
For long moments he watched her, struggling with his emotion, desiring, yet afraid to ask the question that trembled on his lips.
At last he pulled himself together and spoke, wistfully, and yearningly: "Mummie, may I please have a little more chocolate layer cake?"

Eleanor Gets a Thrill

By ELEANOR WILMOT

(Copyright.)

ELEANOR looked at her watch. Yes, she would have three full hours to spare in which to help Aunt Nancy pack silver, her choice crystal and china preparatory to putting her household goods in storage for a year while she—Miss Nancy Woodward, went abroad.

Eleanor lost no time in getting started. The tailored linen suit which she wore, could, she reflected, be slipped off when she reached Aunt Nancy's, and as she and her relative were about the same size, she would borrow a kimono or house dress in which to help with the work.

Arriving at Miss Woodward's home, she found her aunt buzzing around excitedly, and in answer to her niece's inquiry for something suitable for a working garb, she directed her to get a coolie coat hanging in a bedroom.

She folded her own crisp, white gown neatly, and decided to lay it in the linen drawer of her aunt's buffet.

Being an efficient young lady, she was soon industriously at work in the kitchen, wrapping and securely packing her aunt's treasures.

"There, Aunt Nancy," she cried, "I've numbered the boxes. When you want to find any particular thing upon your return, you can look at the book, locate the box number it is in—and there you are."

Eleanor noticed that one of the moving men who was passing through the kitchen with an armful of stuff, looked at her approvingly and smiled. She noticed that he had marvelous and very well-cared-for-teeth, that his eyes were brown, and the expression of them singularly pleasing.

Eleanor sighed. What a pity that such a promising looking young chap should be a moving man.

The time passed rapidly.

Why, it was already time to be on her way to keep that important business engagement.

Quickly washing her hands, she ran into the dining room to get her linen dress. To her amazement, the buffet was gone.

She darted through the front hall to the doorway. Moving slowly up the street was a van with the household goods of her Aunt Nancy piled high. Somewhere in that mountain of furniture was the buffet with her dress in it! Aunt Nancy came through the hall.

"Oh," cried Eleanor, "you'll have to lend me a dress to wear home. Mine was in the buffet."

"Oh!" Aunt Nancy said, "but my trunks went on the load ahead."

Suddenly, without thought of her appearance, Nancy made a rapid sprint in pursuit of the van. The good-looking man was driving.

"Hello," you there," she called frantically. "You got my dress in the buffet, and you'll have to let me get it!"

The young man grinned, stopped the truck.

"Easier said than done," he chortled. "The buffet is at the very base of the mountain."

Eleanor stamped her foot on the pavement.

"You've just got to take my dress out of that load of furniture! I can't go on the elevated and subway in a soiled old coolie coat, and I have a tremendously important business engagement."

The young man looked inquiringly.

"You don't believe me," she demanded, her eyes flashing.

"Surely I believe you," he nodded agreeably, "and we'll dig that buffet out if we have to use a charge of dynamite!"

An hour and a half later, Eleanor entered the private office of one of the officials of the World Transportation company, with whom she was seeking a position, and she found herself looking straight into the eyes of the good-looking young moving man who was regarding her seriously from his vantage point behind a neatly arranged, flat-topped desk.

Eleanor stared in amazement, then flushed rosy red, and in her own mind she was exceedingly glad that she had changed her white linen for her new, natty tweed business suit. At the same time, she resolved not to bat an eyelash in the way of recognition. Evidently he had decided on the same course of action.

The interview proceeded briskly, and Eleanor left the office with her head high and walking on air. The position was hers, and that, too, at a highly satisfactory salary.

It was three weeks later that Eleanor, seated opposite young John Temple, vice president of the World Transportation company, in a public dining room, looked up quizzically and asked pointedly:

"Mr. Temple, how did it happen that you were on the moving van the day we first met?"

"It was just a motion of mine," he smiled, "to do a little special scouting work to see how our local employees were serving the public—nothing like personal contact, you know."

Eleanor nodded understandingly.

"And," continued the first speaker, "I've never regretted carrying off your dress in that buffet for a moment, and I hope some day to carry off the girl who owns it."

Eleanor's clear blue eyes met his brown ones. Then her face crinkled into an adorable smile.

"My second thrill!" she murmured happily.

Activities at High School

The Junior Class of Kingston High School will give their annual dance Friday night in the school gym, which will be decorated elaborately in the colors of the Junior banner. Joseph Herbert, president of the third year class, is in hopes that the dance under the administration will set the mark for the coming Junior classes.

A report from the ticket committee Tuesday afternoon showed that the ticket sale surpassed the number that was expected to be sold. It is very evident that the ticket committee has been working hard and their reward will be that of a record crowd.

Letter Club Dance.

To make the Christmas vacation more complete the Varsity Letter Club of the school is having a dance Friday night, December 27, in the school gym. Only Alumni members and present members are allowed to attend. Tickets may be secured from any letter club member or at the office of Principal Van Ingen up until this Friday.

Senior Class.

Senior Class members are now wearing their hand-some rings which they got recently. Also their work on the Maroon is progressing rapidly. Howard Thomas, president, is handling the affairs of the class in fine fashion.

Assemblies Interesting.

The number of assembly sessions have been cut down to two since the second is over-crowded. These two on Wednesday and Friday mornings are very interesting. Mr. Shaw has his Glee and Choral Clubs and his orchestra rehearse on Wednesday.

Miss Ann Byrne has been giving current plays on Friday mornings. All the characters have been chosen and trained with valuable training value. The plays in a splendid way. Other student body affairs make these assemblies interesting.

LYONSVILLE.

Lyonsville, Dec. 19. There will be a Christmas entertainment in the Lyonsville Reformed Church on Sunday evening, December 22, at 7:30 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to everyone.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester L. Roosa entertained at their home on Sunday for dinner the Rev. T. S. Braithwaite and son, Harry and Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Barley.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Miller and children and Mrs. Ellen Davis called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob H. Barley on Sunday evening.

There will be no church services on Sunday afternoon, December 22, on account of the Christmas exercises in the evening.

All are sorry to hear of the illness of L. D. Christiana.

A number from this place are planning on attending the Christmas exercises at Krumville on Friday evening.

The Kingston Savings Bank

Suggests a Good Motto For the New Year

SAVE YOUR MONEY!!

and further

Where is there a better place or a safer place for your savings than in a SAVINGS BANK.

WHAT IS A SAVINGS BANK AND HOW DOES IT MAKE YOUR DEPOSITS SECURE?

The following is a concise statement of what a Savings Bank is and how its assets are invested and protected.

1: A Savings Bank is organized under the laws of the State of New York and is under the superintendence, supervision, examination and visitation of the State Banking Department.

The law provides that moneys received by a Savings Bank can only be invested as follows:

(a) A first mortgage on improved real estate not to exceed 60% of the valuation of such real estate as fixed by capable and competent men selected from the Board of Trustees and known as the Finance Committee, who make an appraisal, examination and inspection of the property.

These mortgages are further protected in all cases by insurance upon the buildings held by the Bank and the title to each piece of property is thoroughly and carefully examined by the Attorney of the Bank who passes upon and certifies to the title.

(b) Some of the money must be invested in Bonds and these Bonds must be Bonds of the United States of America or Bonds of a State, County, Town, Village or School District. These are known as Municipal Bonds and are secured by the real estate within the territory as against which the Bonds are issued, and further the Bank may invest in a class of Railroad and Public Utility Bonds, but only those within the limit prescribed by and of a kind designated by the Savings Bank Law of the State.

(c) It may also lend money on promissory notes payable to the order of the Savings Bank within ninety days secured by legal Savings Bank investments or the pass book of any Savings Bank in the State of New York as collateral security.

No stocks can be invested in and no dealings in investments other than above designated, which are the surest in the Country.

2: The Bank is managed by a Board of Trustees varying in number according to the Bank Charter, and these Trustees are prohibited from receiving pay, and the only persons connected with the Bank receiving pay are the officials and employees.

3: From time to time all the assets of the Bank, including the Mortgages, Bonds and every other investment are personally and carefully examined, scrutinized, checked and counted by representatives from the State Banking Department.

4: Twice a year a Committee from the Board of Trustees of the Bank appointed by the President, and changing each time, examine, check, count and go over all the investments, examine the books, determine the amount of cash and report to the State Banking Department.

5: All the employees in the Bank are under Bond.

6: Every Savings Bank has a large surplus probably approximating 15% of its deposits, and this surplus is an insurance fund as against the deposits.

7: Thus every deposit in a Savings Bank has as its security the investments above designated and in addition to that the surplus of the Bank.

8: The Mortgages taken are for short terms and the officials of the Bank give careful attention to the various properties with a view to ascertaining if the security holds good, properties kept in repair, insurance paid, taxes paid and any other item looked after which might affect the security.

9: There is a monthly meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Bank at which the general affairs of the Bank are discussed, reports made of the various committees and advice given and received relative to the general affairs of the Bank.

Reviewing this statement is there any place where a depositor may more safely put his money?

November Milk Brought $2.97

Price 26 Cents Above 1921-28 Average, but 11 Cents Less Than Last November.

New York, Dec. 18—A basic net pool price of $2.97 for 3.5 milk at the 201-210 mile freight zone will be paid members by the Dairymen's Cooperative Association, Inc., for their November milk.

This price is 26 cents per 100 pounds above the average net pool price for the period 1921-1928. Although this price will be eleven cents below November a year ago, the total amount of money received by dairy farmers for the month's deliveries will be the largest November return in the history of the Association. It will exceed last November by approximately $570,000.

Principal reason for this gross increase in income is the increased volume of milk handled by the Association, which was 27,000,000 pounds more than a year ago. Drop in the pool price is due principally to the fact that the increased volume of milk forced larger percentage of the month's sales through lower classifications, especially Class 3 and some in Class 4-B. The price of milk sold in these classes which includes condensed, evaporated, and cheese were 29 to 22½ cents below the prices of a year ago.

These lower prices are due to surplus conditions existing in the dairy industry throughout the whole country. On November 1 there was a 59 per cent increase in the amount of condensed and evaporated milk in warehouses. It is estimated, and an even greater increase in volume of butter.

Ulster Auto Club Rapidly Growing

One of the most rapidly growing organizations in Ulster county is the Automobile Club of Ulster County, which now numbers nearly 600 members. In 1927 the club had a membership of 372 while in 1928 the membership totaled 520.

During 1930, the club officials expect to see a continued interest and growth in membership and the goal fixed at 1,500 members during the new year.

According to club officials the club's growth in the past few years has been steady and consistent and is largely due to the fact that automobile owners are realizing more and more the need of an organization that will give better and more effective service. By being affiliated with the A. A. A., the Ulster County Auto Club has been able to render better service to its members.

The club maintains headquarters in the Governor Clinton Hotel where road maps are kept on file and general touring information not only as to road conditions in Ulster county, but throughout the United States is available.

The bureau of standards says a 100-watt bulb in a well-shaded type of portable lamp will give very good lighting. Sixty watts will do, but 100 watts are better. Unshaded lamps are not recommended.

Doing Finely But More Is Needed

There is a fine response to the Salvation Army appeal for funds with which to provide Christmas dinners for poor families and toys and a little candy and an orange or two for the kiddies. The coins and the bills are being dropped into the kettles and a number of people of the city and county have sent checks directly to D. N. Mathews of the State of New York bank who is acting for Ensign Van Syckle as treasurer of the fund. All this support is very welcome and very plentiful but there is marked shortage of it forthcoming. An extra effort must be put forth.

Ensign Van Syckle said on Tuesday that the people from shops and from the factories in just about what it was at this time last year. If anything it is a trifle larger. But he points out, there are more people depending on the Salvation Army this year than in other years and there is more of unemployment in the city. He has heard from a great many who last year were well able to care for their own Christmas celebration, but who this year will welcome a little help. They are people who are temporarily out of work or who have met with reverses through sickness and who face Christmas with little prospect of it being a merry one.

The service bureau of the Salvation Army is anxious to do all that is possible for these people. Every request for assistance is investigated quickly and confidentially. The aim is to avoid embarrassment as far as possible to those who are temporarily out of luck. The list of those who must have help at Christmas time grows. The list is carefully watched and duplications are not possible. The only way the Salvation Army can function in this direction is by acting as the agent for the warm-hearted people of the city and county, who contribute their money and depend on the Salvation Army to put it to the best use.

Therefore, at this time, Ensign Van Syckle, who has kept in close touch with Mr. Mathews, asks the people of the city and county to help as generously as they consistently can. Coins or bills dropped in the kettles help immeasurably. Checks sent direct to Mr. Mathews mean a great deal. He asks the people to assist him in the work that he is called upon to perform for the poor people of this section in the next few days.

Creates Six New Cardinals

Vatican City, Dec. 19 (AP).—Pope Pius today placed the red hat on the heads of six newly created Princes of the church.

The Pontiff was assisted in the ceremony by Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State. The new Cardinals were introduced singly to the Pontiff, who then endowed them with the Episcopal gown, the Pectoral cross, the Cardinalate cord of red and gold, and the red Berretta, or skull-cap.

The new Cardinals are the Patriarch of Lisbon, Monsignor Emanuele Gonzales Cerejeira; Archbishops Lavitrano of Palermo, Sicily; Minoretti of Genoa; MacRory of Armagh, Ireland; and Verdier, of Paris; and Monsignor Pacelli, Papal Nuncio at Berlin.

Their induction brought the number of Cardinals to 62. Of these 33 are of non-Italian nationality and 29 Italian.

The United States has four representatives in the college, Archbishops O'Connell of Boston; Dougherty of Philadelphia; Hayes of New York and Mundelein of Chicago. Germany has four Cardinals and France has seven.

After he had been given his berretta the Cardinal Patriarch of Lisbon read, in the name of himself and the others newly created Cardinals, gratitude for the Pontiff's benevolence.

The Pontiff replied he was grateful the Lord permitted him to raise to the college such worthy persons on the eve of the golden anniversary of his priesthood.

Ends Coughs!

"Each cough made me more anxious... more frightened!"

"It was eleven o'clock on a bitter winter night—my little daughter Jane woke up—coughing. My husband ran to the drug store and got a bottle of Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. With the very first swallow of the syrup her cough began to calm down. We gave her a little bit every hour and finally, around two o'clock in the morning, she fell asleep again. How relieved I was! In the morning Jane felt much better—and in two days she was all well again."

Mrs. J. K. Vila, New York City

Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup ends coughs so quickly because it has Triple Action: (1) it soothes, (2) is mildly laxative, (3) clears air passages.

Flowers and Smokes at Ball

From the standpoint of flowers and "smokes" the eleventh annual Charity Ball of the Knights of Columbus, which will take place at the Kingston state armory on Friday evening, January 24, 1930, will be a bigger success than ever.

Eleanor Gunn Says

That the Empire silhouette is already casting its shadow on the wall, having been hinted at in several southern collections.

The importance of the suit, and jacket costume cannot be over estimated. The dinner and evening suit is included in every representative southern collection.

White is high lighted for resort apparel, white woolen costumes being especially lauded.

While white jewelry, diamonds, crystals, pearls and marcasite are generally preferred for evening, these are frequently set with colored stones, turquoise being among the revivals. Emeralds and rubies lead in favor.

Velveteen in brilliant colors is being sponsored by sports wear makers for southern wear.

Pajamas are more and more important, and wider and wider at the ankle.

Capelets are being introduced not only on coats, but on all sorts and conditions of costumes.

While peach remains a prime favorite for southern wardrobes, combinations of all kinds are being used, pastels being the preferred range.

(Copyright, 1929, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Eleanor Gunn On Fashions

New York—At the height of the holiday season, even when an urgent need of party frocks disturbs us, there is a tendency to peer behind the curtain for a glimpse of the costumes being prepared for southern settings. It is invariably the future rather than the past or present which grips the imagination of the style conscious.

As usual the successes of the current season are carried over and interpreted in such materials as will make them a success in the new. Designers of southern clothes have gone wholeheartedly in for a further development of the new silhouette. They feel none of the uncertainty which over-shadowed the inception of this season. It is definitely known that the long skirt has gone over, and while designers are still wise enough not to insist on it for sports, the influence of the new mode is naturally apparent even in sports collections.

There is first, the acceptance of the fact that we will again become sun worshippers and to this end tennis frocks are cut even more daringly, and beach costumes become, if possible, more brief. Nobody heading southward will think of omitting a beach ensemble, and in nine cases out of ten it is going to be a pajama—very wide as to trousers, so wide in fact, that it hangs almost like a skirt.

Tennis dresses have gone so far as to omit the built up bodice, and to omit shoulder straps as well as back, the camisole tennis dress being one of the newest. In some instances the straps are bowed at the top of the shoulder. In others the strap is shaped to a neckband with the result that there just isn't any back at all!

One feels a natural confidence in cottons for the southern season. They have been a long time coming, and now seem to have sufficient sponsorship to continue throughout the season. One feels also that the pastel range will assume greater importance. Most women have been surfeited with brilliant colors, besides which the silhouette being what it is, and the tendency toward delicate feminine things, one naturally feels more responsive to delicacy in color.

Peach is still given as the headliner in southern colors, but there are ever so many other soft tones, and combination of tones which invite attention. Such costumes are completed with friendly accessories, shoes, hats and so on, the ensemble habit persists, although one feels less and less called to stress so obvious a point.

The status of the suit, whether for evening or morning is unquestioned, all southern collections pay it every deference.

Choni Monastery

Rare Books From Choni in the Library of Congress.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

THE monastery and village of Choni near the Tibetan border of China, which was recently the scene of a massacre by Moslem soldiers, was an outstanding type of the Lama communities that dot western China and Tibet.

The site of Choni is in the southwestern part of Kansu Province. Though it was the capital of the domain of the prince of Choni, it was merely a village of 400 families, approximately 2,000 inhabitants. The natives of this region are of Tibetan origin; in fact, there are few real Chinese in the neighborhood. The village was by far the best situated spot in Kansu Province, and the prince's territory was the choicest bit of land. Nowhere else in Kansu are there such forests, and the scenery is unsurpassed.

The village probably changed but little during the six centuries of its existence. The Tao river, which flows a third of a mile below the south gate, furnished the water for the town and the lamasery. Women carried the water in wooden buckets to the town, and the poorer monks conveyed it the additional 500 feet to the lamasery.

Little of this water was used for cleansing purposes. The monks, therefore, reeked of rancid butter and grease, and their skin was black from the accumulated filth of years. Even lama officials do not bathe, although their faces appear washed. Their priestly garments of red Lhasa cloth are unwashable; and since few of them have more than one garment, the clothing is saturated with odors so strong that it is difficult to expel the scent from a room after even a short visit by a small group of lamas.

Monastery Is Extensive.

Choni monastery or what remains of it is surrounded by a wall of loess (a peculiar deposit of loam) pierced by a large stone gate looking south. Upon the gate is the inscription: Chi Ssu-Chan-Ting Ssu (Bestowed by Imperial Command Temple of Abstract Tranquility). A memorial stone of 1736 records that the tablet for the monastery was written by Emperor King Hsi himself in 1710 as a favor to Chih Lien, a Choni priest, who paid him a visit. After his return to Choni, Chih Lien is said to have contributed 3,00 taels of silver—a great sum at that time—toward the building of temples and chanting halls in the monastery. Within the walls are 172 buildings, not including 10 large and small chanting halls.

During the reign of Yung Lo the monastery housed 3,800 monks, but recently only 700 have resided there.

Of the 10 chanting halls in Choni two are fairly large. The one most frequently used faces a square in which the lama dances are performed and the butter festival is celebrated. This hall is flanked by three other buildings.

The largest chanting hall, a structure probably 200 years old, is immediately back of the first. It can accommodate about 400 monks. The roof is supported by 80 large pillars of wood lacquered red. The main idol in this hall is Wutaishan, or Chamby-ang, the God of Learning (the Chinese Wen Shen, God of Literature).

On festive days this hall was beautifully decorated with brocades. From the ceiling were suspended long ceremonial umbrellas, and the pillars were sheathed in magnificent hand-woven carpets, the gift of the Mongol king of the Ala Shan. The hall was opened only on special occasions, such as the Feast of Lights, when the monks assembled at night to chant the classics.

Complete Set of Tibetan Classics.

A building to the left of the main chanting hall contained a large octagonal prayer cylinder of wood, with doors. Within it was kept a complete set of the Kandjur and Tandjur, the chief Tibetan classics, the former comprising 108 volumes, the latter—the commentary—200 volumes. To the cylinder were attached slender bars with carved figures, by means of which the wheel could be set in motion. With one revolution the devotee said the contents of the 317 volumes—indeed a quick way of saying prayers.

Priceless possessions of Choni lamasery were printing blocks of both the Kandjur and the Tandjur. A number of other lamaseries, such as Derge and Badja, have blocks of the Kandjur, but rarely of the Tandjur. In fact, Choni is said to have been the only monastery outside Lhasa possessing the Tandjur blocks, and the claim is made that the books printed here are without mistakes, the best edition known.

The printing blocks of both classics were more than 500 years old. It took sixteen years to carve the blocks of the Tandjur alone. The Choni Prince suggested movable type, but the lamas refused to entertain the idea. It took 45 monks three months to print the Kandjur and nearly six months to print the Tandjur. This does not include the time consumed in preparing the paper for the printers.

The paper used is bought at Kungchang, in eastern Kansu, 11 days distant from Choni. It is very thin, and the monks pasted eight sheets together to make one for the book. When 317 volumes are printed, one can surmise the time and labor spent.

The Library of Congress in Washington, D. C., obtained a complete set of the two classics from the Choni lamasery. These were packed in 92 boxes and sent by caravan seven days to Lanchow; thence by parcel post to Shanghai. Unfortunately, they arrived at Sianfu just before the gates of that city closed. There they remained through the whole siege of the town. They did reach Shanghai, however, after being more than a year on the way.

Ceremonial Dances.

Great ceremonies, conducted regularly each year in Choni lamasery, were few. There was a dance on the 13th of the first moon; the butter festival was celebrated on the 15th, and another dance was performed on the 16th. The Sunning of the Buddha took place in the spring, on the 30th day of the sixth moon fell the Old Dance, Chamngyon-wa, probably the most interesting of all the ceremonies.

There is a dance on the 24th of the 10th moon, followed on the 25th by the Feast of Lights, which commemorates the ascension of Tsongkapa, with yet another dance on the 26th day. Every third year, on the 16th of the first moon, the Choni lamas celebrate the installation of a new presiding priest by a peculiar festival known as Le Chon Chaker.

The time between ceremonies was occupied by the monks in chanting on certain days, but otherwise mainly in loafing. In case of illness of wealthy believers, the lamas were asked to chant the classics, believed to have a salubrious effect. The charge for opening the largest chanting hall was 300 taels of silver ($200). To expedite the reading of these voluminous works, 500 assembled lamas divided the pages and each read portion of the text—a rather disconnected method, but apparently it matters little if the beginning, middle, and end are read at the same time. It was thus possible to read the 108 volumes of the Kandjur in a day.

Congregation "Fed Up" on Ten Virgins' Sermons

It is still customary in rural districts in Scotland for the minister to preach a series of sermons around one Scripture text. The parable of the Ten Virgins had been selected by an old minister for a series of ten sermons, in which he took one virgin at a time.

Many of the church folks were heartily tired of the subject at the end of a week or two, but it was left to the beadle to tell the minister the truth.

Asked by the good man as he was disrobing him in the vestry one evening how he was enjoying "my analysis of the characters of the virgins," the beadle replied brusquely:

"The hale congregation's fair scunnert wi' them, sir. They maun be a lot o' tough auld maids by this time!"—London Tit-Bits.

Tommy's Trouble

The father was very disappointed with his boy's progress at school, and the end of the term had brought a rather bad report from the headmaster.

"Look here, Tommy, you'll have to buck up!" said the father. "There must be an alteration!"

"Well, Dad," said the boy, "can't there be an alteration in the school?"

"What do you mean?" asked the father.

"Why, it's like this," explained Tommy. "I had an awful time of it last term—aren't there any schools which advertise 'easy terms'?"

Illiteracy and Crime

A survey of prisons reveals the fact that the illiterate classes constituted the main body of those being punished for crimes of violence, while the educated classes were more fully represented by those serving time for crimes against property.

Many Good Cows In Ulster County

The final report of the Ulster County Dairy Improvement Association for the month of November has recently been published. It shows that there are some exceedingly good cows in Ulster county among its members.

The herd owned by the Shawangunk Valley Stock Farm, Wallkill, takes the lead in Ulster county and is among the leading herds in New York state. Their high cow produced 3,144 pounds of milk in November. The records made by other members of the association are exceedingly good. A summary of the November report is as follows:

Owner	Cows Milking	Number on Honor Roll	Butterfat Production of High Cow

A cow, to have her name on honor roll, must produce 1[illegible] pounds of milk or 40 pounds butterfat in one month. The summary shows that 127 cows on the honor roll for Novem[illegible] This number compares very favorably with the best associations in state.

Interest in the testing of cows showing a marked increase. A number of dairymen would like to become members of the Dairy Improvement Association, but it is completely filled. Edgar Wilson, the tester for the association, has every day of the month taken, including some Sundays. If sufficient dairymen are interested it will be possible to organize another complete group, by getting in touch with Harry [illegible] Kingston, president of the Association, or Albert Kurdt, the secretary, at the Farm Bureau office, 74 John street, Kingston.

Senior Luther League Officers

At the annual election of officers of the Senior Luther League of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Fred Spalt, Jr., was elected president; Fanny Ramming, vice president; Katherine Bailey, corresponding secretary; Caroline Port, recording secretary; and John Moughtaling, treasurer. The new officers will be installed at the watchnight service New Year's eve. Plans for a busy year were discussed. The league will again go out Christmas caroling Christmas eve at 10 p. m. at the home of the shut-ins of the congregation. Sunday afternoon they will hold a Christmas service at the Alms house at 4 o'clock. On New Year's eve they will make the rounds of their members' homes where they will be served the different parts of a full meal. They will make their first stop at the pastor's home at 6 p. m. Substantial sums were voted to the church treasury and to the mortgage fund.

SHOKAN

Shokan, Dec. 19—Mr. and Mrs. James Gedan of Kingston, former residents of Shokan, were callers in the village Saturday.

Frances one of the bright little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Burr Elmendorf is the latest victim of the local epidemic of whooping cough. The disease, having attacked nearly all except the immune among our youngsters, will presently pop up in some other community, probably.

Mr. and Mrs. Granville Bush and L. J. Lewis of Brown Station spent a pleasant evening with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Osterhoudt recently.

The late Mrs. Edgar Harlow, whose death was chronicled last week, had a number of friends in Shokan, she and her mother, Mrs. Schryver, being frequent visitors to this place.

On December 20, 1864, the thermometer stood at 11 below zero. It was the coldest day here in 15 years. Still another snappy December morn was that of the 21st in 1866, when the mercury fell to 12 minus.

Mrs. Mary Keogan of Spillway was among those who attended services in the Old School Baptist Church last Sunday. Mrs. Keogan formerly resided in Olive Branch.

All hopes of an early ice harvest seem to have been dissipated by the thaws and subsequent rains. During the cold spell the ice formed rapidly on Kenoza Lake and the reservoir.

Henry Yacht of Kingston was a week end visitor at the home of Francis Hughes of Van Steenburgh road.

James Rutherford of Ashokan Heights is delivering stove wood in the village. "Jim" gets his wood from the lot Elva Bogart's place on the mountain, as does Elmer Bedell, the Shokan firewood dealer. Split oak wood commands $4 per cord in the local market this season.

December 21, 1862, marked the death of Peter G. Eckert, a well known resident of Olive. Mr. Eckert's funeral was held on the 21st at his late home, the services being conducted by the Rev. A. T. Peake and the Rev. William Hill, the Reformed and Methodist pastors.

Allen Rose, manager of the Lynn place in Traver Hollow, while in Shokan the other day exhibited a big old one-cent piece of the vintage of '65, which he says he uncovered while plowing on the mountain slope recently. A fiction writer, gifted with a fertile imagination, might weave a story around this long buried copper. Suppose: A young Olive fellow, just back from the war, is breaking up new soil on the hillside; the plowshare strikes a stump root and the driver, dreaming perhaps of campaign days in Virginia, is catapulted between the plowtails and almost between the patient oxen; from the lad's jeans a shiny copper as big as a fifty-cent piece is flipped out and lands in a furrow. A little bit upset by his abrupt and involuntary dive, the driver does not miss the coin, which remains in the rock-studded soil for three score and five years, when another young man, also plowing, spies the piece and rescues it from obscurity.

At a meeting of the Reformed church consistory held on December 19, 1895, Isaac Hill was received into the church.

Emory Personeus, the well known sportsman of Kingston, spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Catherine Personeus, and sister, Mrs. James Giles.

Services in the Baptist Church were well attended. Arnold Bellows of Delaware county addressed the congregation. Among those from Kingston who attended church were, Orville Winchell, John Hasbrouck and Morris Secor, together with their families. At the next stated meeting Elder Huston, who until recently was pastor of the church, will preach.

The warm days of the latter part of the week nearly caused the frost to go out of the ground; in fact the thaw did have the effect of loosening up the soil enough to allow the rain water to seep down into the lower stratas where it is still badly needed.

Mrs. Caude Rose is busy fashioning Christmas evergreen wreaths for one of the big Kingston department stores.

Harry Lee, a former resident of Shokan, and party of friends were visitors to this section last Sunday. Mr. Lee is now in the employ of the Cornell Steamboat Company.

On December 22, 1904, the death took place of Clarence Markle, son of Solomon and Abigail (Davis) Markle. The funeral was held in the Reformed church December 25, services being conducted by the Rev. C. W. Clowe and the Junior Order of American Mechanics. Mr. Markle was a farmer and an expert snare drummer in the famous Sheepskin Band.

A number of automobile owners have been having trouble lately with locked starters. As neither starter nor crank will induce the car to come to life, considerable work with a socket wrench is involved before things liven up around the old bus again. Occasionally, the old method of jiggling the car, or running it backward and forward, serves to start it, but as a rule this stunt doesn't work at all. Charlie Schipp, local master mechanic, states that several makes of cars develop this annoying peculiarity, the trouble being due to the practice of installing powerful starters equipped with flywheels having soft metal cogs which cannot "stand the racket", as it were.

Motorists driving through Shokan after dusk should not become unduly apprehensive or provoked at what appears to be a "one-eyed" car approaching them; it very likely is Marvin Green, the prosperous feed man, journeying to or from the post office with his powerful flash-light, said to be the largest and longest-ranged light of its kind in these parts.

Earl Haley and family were among the Kingstonians who enjoyed a trip around the east basin of the reservoir last Sunday afternoon.

The light snows thus far in the winter have soon disappeared, enabling the farmers to turn their cattle out in the fields a good share of the time. While the grazing at this time of the year is pretty short, the cows nevertheless greatly enjoy scouting around for such bunches of green grass which are still to be found. The farmer also profits by the grazing, in hay saved and increased milk production.

On Thursday, December 18, 1902, the funeral was held in the Baptist Church of Mrs. Sarah C. Davis, wife of Curtis Beadle, the Rev. Mr. Aifke officiating. Mrs. Beadle was a sister of Aiyah F. and Dewitt C. Davis, and of Mrs. Aner Ennist and Mrs. Abigail Markle. She was the mother of Harvey (deceased), Elmer and Ed. Beadle.

Mrs. Charles Tyler has returned home after a stay of several weeks in Kingston.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Constable was the scene of a pleasant social gathering, Saturday evening, December 14, when about twenty of Mr. and Mrs. Constable's friends and relatives gathered to help celebrate the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of that genial couple. Out of town guests who were present at this enjoyable affair included: Mr. and Irvin Craver of Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Constable and son of Phoenicia, Noah Burgher of Kingston, and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Barringer.

Mrs. Charles Price, who has been stopping at Miss Bertha Groom's returned to her home in Philadelphia last week.

Port Ewen, Dec. 19—The third department of the Epworth League will hold a food sale at Jump's store Friday at 2:30 p. m. Members of the league are asked to contribute toward the sale.

Mrs. Coutant is assisting in the post office during the holiday rush.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Shultis of Modena were recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Taylor.

The Reformed Church will hold a song service at 7:30 this evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burdette Van Aken.

The Methodist prayer meeting will be held at 7:30 this evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Lynn.

Thursday evening, December 26, will be the annual election of officers of the Port Ewen Fire Department. Every fireman is expected to be present to vote. The meeting will begin promptly at 7 o'clock so that if anyone has another engagement for that night it will not interfere with it.

Dr. Sibley Heads Medical Society

Annual Meeting Held and Officers Elected Wednesday Evening—Doctors Want a Doctor on State Board of Regents.

Dr. E. F. Sibley of this city was elected president of the Ulster County Medical Society at the annual meeting held Wednesday evening at the Governor Clinton Hotel. The other officers elected were: Vice president, Dr. Frank F. Johnston; treasurer, Dr. Chester B. Van Gaasbeek; and secretary, Dr. F. H. Voss.

The society also selected as the board of censors Dr. Frederick Snyder, Dr. F. E. O'Connor and Dr. J. R. Nelson of Kingston, Dr. Meekins of Highland, and Dr. Hugh Chidester of Saugerties. Dr. Mary Gage-Day was elected a delegate to the state society and Dr. A. A. Stern was selected as alternate.

Dr. Frederick Holcomb of this city was elected delegate to the Third District Branch and Dr. Frank Holcomb of Ellenville was selected as the alternate.

A resolution was adopted which will be forwarded to senator and assemblyman from this district requesting their support in appointing Dr. Grant C. Medill of the Fourth Judicial District, as a member of the State Board of Regents.

At the present time there is a vacancy on that board and none of the present members are physicians. As this board has the licensing of physicians in charge the local medical society believes that the board should have at least one physician among its members.

The standing committees reported on the work done during the past year. The committee on tuberculosis gave an interesting report on the proposed building of the new tuberculosis hospital in the spring of 1930.

Dr. Raymond S. Crispell, chairman of the public health and public relations committee, submitted an interesting report on conditions in Ulster county.

Following the business session Dr. John F. Larkin read an interesting paper on fractures which was discussed by Dr. A. A. Stern and Dr. Mark O'Meara.

At the close of the meeting dinner was served.

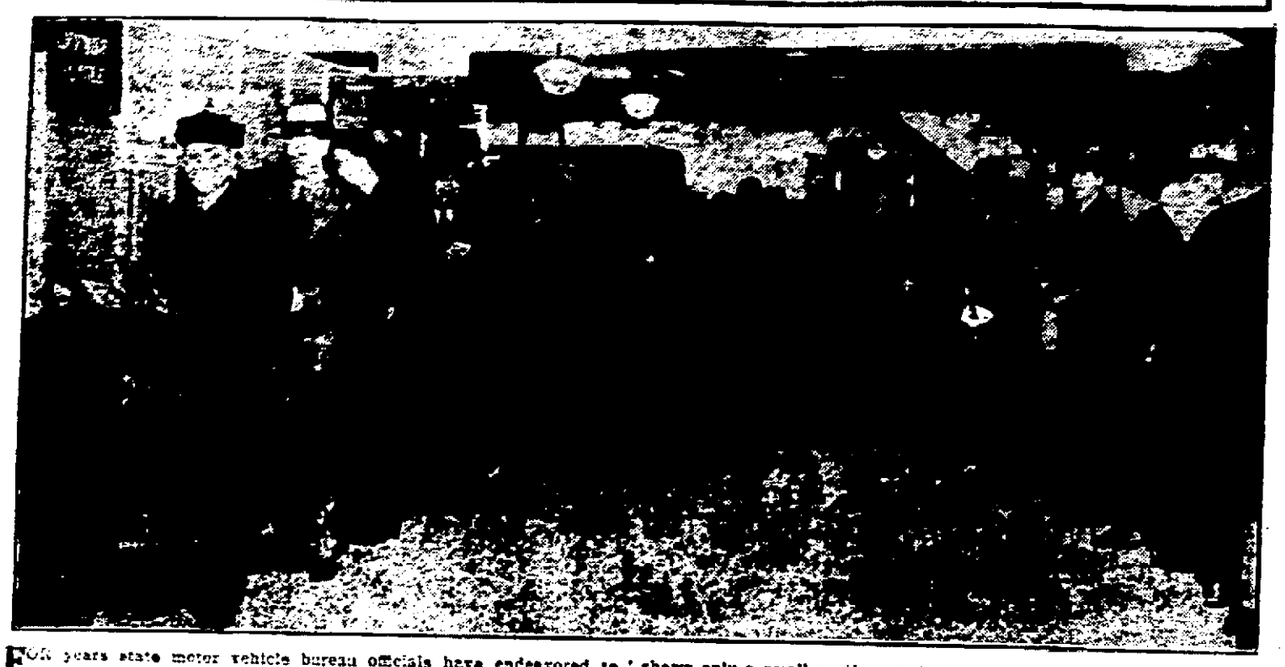
Convicts Scale Wall in Blizzard.

Chicago, Dec. 19 (AP).—Five prisoners were reported to have escaped from the county jail today by scaling the wall under cover of a blinding blizzard. Trusties and prisoners said they witnessed the escape. A cordon of guards armed with shot guns was thrown around the jail and a check of prisoners was made.

GET OUT OF THIS LINE!



For years state motor vehicle bureau officials have endeavored to get the public out of such a line as pictured above and have pleaded with them to purchase their auto license plates early. Elimination of such a line of waiting people has been their aim. The above photograph shows only a small portion of the crowd at Albany that fills the office by waiting until the last day to secure license plates. The 1930 plates are now on sale at county clerks' and other offices and have been since late in November with little response from the public. The new plates may be put on machines beginning Monday, December 16.

BLACKMER IS HELD PRISONER ABROAD

Oil Millionaire Cannot Cross French Border.

Paris.—Despite his millions, vaguely estimated at from $15,000,000 to $35,000,000, Harry F. Blackmer, American oil magnate, is virtually being held a prisoner in France, where he fled to escape legal difficulties in this land.

It is true that he is not a prisoner in the sense that he is incarcerated in one spot, but if he chooses to retain what freedom he now possesses he dare not cross the border lands of France. He cannot get a passport to America, unless he agrees to give himself up to face the charges that are lodged against him, and he cannot go to England, Switzerland or Italy without the danger of arrest.

For a millionaire who has been accustomed to go where and when he pleases the situation undoubtedly is difficult.

Blackmer is wanted on charges of falsifying income tax returns, an accusation preferred by the United States Treasury department. He was involved in the Teapot Dome scandal and was said to have made millions in oil not properly reported to the income tax authorities.

In addition to the attachment which the Treasury department has on Blackmer's millions in America, the Department of Justice also has an attachment of $100,000 on his property for contempt of court. A large share of his fortune, however, is believed deposited in foreign banks.

Recently litigations whereby the United States government sought to extradite the oil magnate failed. A slender circumstance, the lack of a more complete extradition treaty between France and the United States, saved him from compulsory return to America and further spectacular legal battles. False testimony regarding tax returns is not regarded as perjury by the French government.

Would Honor Europe's First User of Tobacco

Ayamonte, Province of Huelva Spain.—A movement is on foot to perpetuate the memory of Rodrigo de Jerez, a citizen of Ayamonte, whose claim to distinction lies in the fact that he was the first person in Europe to smoke.

Rodrigo de Jerez was one of the three Ayamonte citizens to accompany Christopher Columbus on his voyage of discovery. Tradition has it that Columbus personally recruited these men, and that Columbus himself lived in Ayamonte for a short while.

When Rodrigo returned from America he rejoined his family and ceased his wanderings, but he had brought back with him a habit which was to get him into trouble—that of smoking. He also brought an ample supply of tobacco leaves. When Rodrigo's wife saw him smoking for the first time, she thought him possessed of devils, and as a true faithful churchwoman that she was, immediately informed the Inquisition of what had transpired. None other than the famous Father Tomas de Torquemada heard the case, and consigned Rodrigo to prison and ordered the house purified and blessed. By the time that he had done his sentence, there were several hundred tobacco smokers in Europe.

Ayamonte has already honored Rodrigo by naming a street after him, the very street on which he lived. His house still stands, and now the town council (Ayuntamiento) wants the Spanish tobacco monopoly, which derives great wealth due to the popularity of the habit brought to Europe by Rodrigo, to pay the expenses of having the house suitably designated by placing a marble marker pointing out its historical significance.

Market for Fruits And Vegetables

New York, Dec. 19—(State Department of Agriculture and Markets)—The undertone of the market on state apples was dull and in a few instances slightly weaker owing to limited buying. Fresh receipts were moderate but fair supplies were on hand from previous arrivals. Peak apple holdings of the season in cold storage throughout the entire country were reported on December 1, 1929, as 2,150,000 barrels, 15,041,000 boxes and 6,670,000 bushel baskets. Combined holdings under refrigeration were equivalent to 9,387,000 barrels, ten per cent less than a year ago and slightly above the average December supply. Holdings in barrels were about one fourth lighter than on December 1, 1928; and 38 per cent below the five-year average figure.

Boxed apples in cold storage were about fourteen per cent less abundant than last season but nine per cent heavier than average. As a result of increased storage facilities in the west, about two-thirds of the the boxes were still held in Pacific coast states. The large supply of apples in bushel baskets is a feature of the season. Basket stocks are nearly one-third greater than in 1928 and 116 per cent above the five year average.

A trifle weaker feeling prevailed on the market on celery. Supplies were moderate but trading was rather light. Most western New York celery, in the rough, peddled out at $3.25-$3.50 per two-thirds crate. California offerings in large crates ranged from $4 to $5.75. During the previous week, New York state shipped 163 carloads of celery, about half as much as a year ago.

Despite the relatively light receipts of domestic yellow onions, the market continued inactive and the demand was again slow. The finest consignments from middle western states changed hands in carlots, as high as $2.25 per 100 pound sack. On the other hand, western New York stock did not exceed $1.90, because of poorer quality. The total carlot movement of onions for all the shipping states for the week ending December 14, 1929, amounted to 590 cars, against 664 for the week before.

Price changes on white potatoes were few and small, nevertheless, early morning trading was generally light doubtless due to unfavorable weather. The tone of the market consequently was rather dull. Of the 437 carloads of white potatoes received on this market last week, Maine furnished 364, while upstate New York contributed only three cars.

Guilty of Killing Fellow Convict.

White Plains, N. Y., Dec. 19 (AP).—The Westchester county grand jury today handed down two indictments charging James Steele, 22, and John Harris, 27, negro convicts at Sing Sing prison, with first degree murder in the fatal stabbing of Reuben Kaminsky, 17, in the prison yard last month. Kaminsky, who was serving a term for robbery in Brooklyn, was stabbed five times while the prisoners were lined up in the yard waiting to go into the dining room. He died within a short time.

Police Seek Clubber.

Cleveland, Dec. 19 (AP).—A clubber who has assaulted two girls here the last two nights was sought today by three squads of police and detectives. Both girls are in a hospital in a critical condition. The latest victim was Miss Rose David, 19, who was hit over the head with a blunt instrument as she was returning home last night. Police said she then was dragged into a yard near her home and attacked.

Increase in Tax Collections.

Washington, Dec. 19 (AP).—Large increases in income tax collections for the first five and a half months of the present fiscal year had on December 17 sent the government income to $198,086,767 more than was collected in the same period last year.

Honest Work

Work in every hour, paid or unpaid, see only that thou work and thou canst not escape the reward: whether thy work be fine or coarse, planting corn, or writing epics, so only it be honest work, done to thine own approbation, it shall earn a reward to the senses as well as to the thought; no matter how often defeated, you are born to victory.—Emerson.

GOATS FAINT AT STARTLING NOISE

Alabama Legislator Has Myotonic Breed.

Birmingham, Ala.—R. J. Goode, insurance man and member of the legislature from Wilcox county, has a breed of goats that have aroused curiosity and interest of every one who has seen them.

They are described as "epileptic," "fainting," "nervous" or "stiff-legged" goats. Mr. Goode came into possession of a pair of the animals about two years ago and now has 15 on his place at Centersburg. The origin of this unusual breed is shrouded in mystery, and every effort made by Mr. Goode to trace their history has ended in failure.

In appearance these goats seem to be exactly like any ordinary goat, having about the usual size and varied color markings.

The interesting and peculiar thing about them is the fact that on being suddenly startled in any manner they fall to the ground, becoming perfectly rigid and stiff, giving the appearance of an epileptic fit, or of an animal suffering from convulsions following strychnine poisoning. This condition lasts for about ten or fifteen seconds, after which the animal arises and walks off, showing a decided stiffness, especially in the posterior limbs, for some little distance, after which time it walks and acts just as any other goat.

These "fits" or "fainting" spells can be produced by any sudden excitement which will startle them. A sudden loud noise or appearance will always produce the reaction. On the other hand, if one should walk slowly in plain view toward the goats they will not fall to the ground but will merely show a stiffness in their hind legs when they begin to move away.

Another peculiar characteristic is that the goats cannot jump a fence even as low as two feet; they cannot jump up into the feed troughs, nor can they jump a ditch of more than two feet in width. It seems that the mere attempt either to jump a fence or a ditch brings on a stiffness of muscles and, in some cases, causes them to fall to the ground in a "faint."

This strange phenomenon is seen in all of the offspring of the pure-bred goats without exception. The very young kids often fail to show any indication of being so affected, but as they acquire a little age the characteristics become more and more marked, so that before the animal is one year of age the characteristic is fully developed. It is said by some scientists that this shows that the characteristic is not pathological in origin but a hereditary condition.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—Stock prices continued to hit the toboggan today as pressure was renewed against amusement, public utility, merchandising and specialty shares. At least a dozen issues were carried to new low levels for the year, or longer, and a long line of others were carried one to 5 points below last night's closing quotations. Only a few issues moved against the general downward trend.

Acute weakness of International Combustion issues coincident with the appointment of a temporary receiver for that company, and another sad break in Fox Film were believed to be principally responsible for the general unsettlement.

CONTROL GARLIC BY FALL PLOWING

Keep Plants Down by Grazing Live Stock.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Timely plowing late each fall and again early in the spring, followed by the growing of thoroughly cultivated row crops, are the essential steps in the so-called cultural method of controlling wild garlic, says the United States Department of Agriculture. In most places this system must be followed for at least three years in order to obtain a satisfactory clean-up of the weed.

Details of the method are given in Leaflet 43-L, Wild Garlic and Its Control, just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. The leaflet also gives a description of the plant and of other plants often mistaken for garlic. Farmers should be able to recognize wild garlic, the department says, as it is more difficult to eradicate than the other species.

Grazing with live stock, especially sheep, for several seasons, as closely as may be safe without serious injury to the pasture, aids in keeping down the growth of garlic in steep, rocky or wooded pastures that cannot be plowed. When dairy cows are pastured in garlicky fields, it is necessary to remove them from the pasture four to seven hours before milking to eliminate entirely the garlic flavor and odor from the milk. Milk cows should not be turned into such pastures in the spring until suitable forage plants are large enough to furnish good grazing.

Copies of the leaflet may be obtained free while the supply lasts by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Bad Practice to Leave Calf With Cow Very Long

A common practice is to leave the calf with the cow for the first three or four days. This plan allows the calf to be with the cow during the time when the udder is inflamed. However, the longer the calf is allowed to remain with the cow, the harder it will be to teach it to drink. If at first a calf does not drink readily from a pail, it is advisable to keep it without food for at least 12 hours. It is then hungry and is usually willing to try drinking. Warm whole milk, fresh from the cow, should be measured or preferably weighed into a clean pail. The quantity of milk that a calf will do well on varies according to the size, breed and individuality of the calf. In general, for Jersey or Guernsey calves, one pound of milk daily for each ten pounds of live weight is a safe quantity. Ayrshire, Holstein, Brown Swiss and Shorthorn calves may be fed one pound of milk a day for each eight pounds of live weight.

Skim Milk Calf

The skim milk calf should be allowed to eat some grain. One good mixture consists of equal parts of corn meal, wheat bran, and ground oats. If the oats are not available a mixture of equal parts of corn meal and wheat bran may be used. A Jersey calf at three months of age should weigh in the neighborhood of 150 pounds and should eat one pound of grain. By the time it is six months old its weight should be around 300 pounds.

Dairy Facts

Sentimental regard for a bull is usually misplaced.

* * *

Every farmer who milks ten or more cows can hardly afford to be without a silo.

* * *

Every dairy farmer should provide in his crop ration some of the legume hay crops.

* * *

Where nonlegume roughages are used in the ration, the protein is low and must be furnished in the grain ration.

* * *

Experimental results show that milk and fat can be produced at a lower cost where silage is included in the winter ration.

* * *

Dried blood meal, mixed with the milk, also helps when a calf is sickly or inclined to scour. Start with one teaspoonful and increase to four teaspoonfuls, if found necessary.

* * *

In cold, stormy weather dairy cows should be outdoors only long enough to drink, and if the stable is comfortable and water available they should not go out at all except on clear, warm days.

* * *

The dry roughage part of the ration includes legumes and other hay crops. Alfalfa, clover, soy bean and cowpea hay represent the best dry roughages that can be fed, because they are high in protein. When these crops are grown on the farm they provide the cheapest protein that can be fed.

Know Thyself—Be Honest

Criticize yourself more frequently. Longfellow set forth truth when he wrote: "Not in the clamor of the crowded streets nor in the shouts and plaudits of the throng, but in ourselves is triumph or defeat."—Grit.

bout 130,000,000 cases of disabling ss occur in the United States each . Adding nondisabling illnesses e than doubles the figure, the com- ee reported. The 36,000,000 wage ers in the country lose at least 000,000 workdays a year and the 00,000 school children lose 170,000,- school days a year. These figures ount for only one-half of the total ulation.

Authorities have stated that there at all times approximately 700,000 ons with tuberculosis, 10,000 with icious anemia and 110,000 addict- to narcotic drugs," the report said. one year there are in the United te more than a million cases of aria. Social diseases at any one e appear to be causing nearly one son per 100 to place himself under care of a physician.

More than 36,000 cases of smallpox e reported in a recent year. While dbearing is not a disease, it causes arge amount of disability. In 1923 re were nearly 2,000,000 births in registration area, many of them owed by complications and a con- erable number (a larger propor- than in most civilized countries) death.

350,000 Mental Patients.

Hospitals for mental and nervous eases contain more than 350,000 pa- ts and this figure is far below at the total would be if those not pitalized were included. Of the ldren now attending school and lege more than 960,000 will enter a pital for mental disease at some iod in their lives if present rates first admissions continue. These res include only the more serious tal diseases and take no account the large numbers with lesser men- disturbances.

Hospitals other than those for ous and mental diseases contain the average more than 350,000 pa- tients at all times. The total in all hospitals on a single day is about 700,000."

How'd You Like to Pay Bills for This Lady

Sydney, Australia.—Australian doc- tors are puzzled over the illness of a twenty-four-year-old girl in St. Vin- cent's hospital here who cannot stop eating.

Whatever the obscure disease may be, it has not affected her personal appearance. She looks much younger than her age. She is allowed to eat in a day: Fifteen meat pies, 24 bananas, 12 mutton chops, 30 slices of toast, 3 loaves of bread and 18 oranges.

In addition, she drinks 27 cups of tea and two gallons of beef tea.

And when she is finished she is still hungry.

Until they have made further in- vestigation the doctors are unable to state what mysterious disease is re- sponsible for her plight.

His 3 "Dying Babies" Prove to Be Kittens

Atlantic City, N. J.—When the terri- fied voice of a man shouted, "My three children have been poisoned!" over the telephone to Captain of Detec- tives Emanuel Eckstein, the latter tracing the call, sent a squad of four detectives, a surgeon and an ambu- lance to 15 South Arkansas avenue, home of Benedittto Francogescu.

The detectives found Benedittto in a state of collapse and unable to talk, pointing to the closed door of a bed- room. The detectives pushed open the door and on the bed saw in the throes of death three six weeks' old kittens.

"My babies, my babies!" Benedittto sobbed. The policemen glowered at him and fled the house.

Pigeon Plays Piano or Dances to Tune

Regina, Sask.—The only pi- geon pianist in Canada is owned by the J. Smith family of Est- lin, Sask. The moment he is in the house "Buddy," the fam- ily pet, hops onto the piano and begins to walk back and forth across the keys. When a pianist begins to play "Buddy" is always present and dances upon the piano to the strains of the melody.

WEST SHOKAN

West Shokan, Dec. 19—Everyone invited to attend the Christmas tree festival to be given at the West Shokan school on Saturday evening. A fine tree has been secured and the school house is being artistically decorated for the merry occasion. Meanwhile the romping carefree children who have for weeks been preparing for the big event, can scarcely wait for the raising of the curtain.

Mr. and Mrs. Shepard Bell were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Markle at Shokan.

After a several weeks' vacation trip spent among relatives and friends in western New York and Pennsylvania, Mr. and Mrs. James Burgher of Maple Dell Farm arrived home late Monday afternoon. Both are looking fine and report a most delightful trip, so well deserved after a strenuous farming and boarding season. Some 1,500 miles were cov- ered during which course the sturdy Ford Sedan performed well and the gasoline consumption was exceeding- ly economical.

Donald Bishop expects to spend Christmas vacation with his grand- mother, Mrs. Watson Bishop. He writes that enough Mt. Hermon students enroute to New York will desert the campus on Saturday to make up a train load, and a special has been chartered for their exclu- sive accommodation.

Ernest Constable states that during the prolonged absence of their house- keeper, Mrs. McGreevy, he has be- come well qualified in the arts of both cookery and housemaid, which fact is manifest in the well filled larder and the spic and span appear- ance of the house.

A Christmas observance service will be held at the Baptist Church on Sunday afternoon, December 22, at two o'clock. The pastor, the Rev. C. F. Ahrens, desires that a cordial invitation be extended to all.

This section was covered by anoth- er ice sheet caused by the freezing rain Monday night. Travel was quite at a standstill Wednesday morning. The high school bus was running a half hour behind schedule and the milk truck did not arrive at the Heights until near ten o'clock.

Beginning Tuesday morning John Jordan and Michael Dwyer were added to the growing list of custom- ers along the Coddington milk route.

Thorne Miller, local truckman, has cut down his powerful Oakland touring car and with a platform con- structed to hold ten cans, will make speedy delivery to the Rondout Val- ley Dairy Company of milk products at the Beechford Farms, home of the Harry Bailey thoroughbred Guernsey herd.

The children of the Brookhaven school are being well drilled by their efficient teacher, Mrs. Burgher, for their entertainment to be given at the school house on Christmas Eve, De- cember 24, to which everyone is cor- dially invited. Santa in person is positively scheduled to appear in time for the distributing of the presents.

Miss Margaret Goldsmith of Ellen- ville is spending a few days at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Clayton Bur- gher.

Mrs. Jane Ann Burgher is still en- joying her visit among relatives and friends in Kingston.

Alonzo Burgher of Kingston was a recent overnight visitor at the old homestead.

The Pinnacle Club was pleasantly entertained on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner Bonno- yoe of Watson Hollow.

Michael Dwyer still has employ- ment during favorable weather at Mr. Frank's in Traver Hollow where for a number of years he has been a valued and trusted employe.

Mrs. Edmund C. Burgher attended Clinton Chapter, O. E. S., of Kings- ton, on Friday evening and enjoyed the week-end as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tomi of Snyder avenue.

Lawrence and Florence Kelder are expected home for Christmas.

A group of Olive members attended the annual meeting of Kingston Lodge, No. 10, held Tuesday evening.

With Donald Bishop's Ford car and a saw bench, loaned by an obliging neighbor, Elwyn Davis has a powerful and efficient wood sawing outfit, which was used this week in saving a winter's supply of firewood for Mrs. Watson Bishop. Charles and Lauren Hasley ably assisted in the work.

Benjamin Burhans of Mt. Tremper recently visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Burghes, and sister, Ollie.

Mr. and Mrs. William V. Colyer returned on Monday following an overnight visit with relatives in Ho- boken.

Varying weather conditions do not cause a deviation in the daily trips of Floyd Goldman of Ashokan, the ef- ficient and courteous water shed in- spector.

A supply of D. L. F. dairy rations has been purchased from the Accord Farmers' Co-operative, and distrib- uted among community farmers on the Coddington milk truck.

The rainy weather has a some- what depressive effect upon Yuletide activities. The evergreen trees, however, are a constant reminder that although the weather may be rainy yet the spirit of Christmas per- meates the atmosphere.

Many Families and Many Children are Dependent on YOU For a Merry Christmas

The steady downpour of rain the first part of this week has seriously affected the receipts from our Christmas pots on the streets and our Christmas boxes in the stores. We are $600 or more short of the amount required to send out the Christmas dinners which we have arranged for and the toys which are needed to bring even a small amount of Christmas cheer to the many homes which are dependent on YOU for the money and on us for the distribution of what this money can buy. To attempt to do our Christmas work with less money means that many families will have to do without the bare necessities of the simple observance of the Christian year's greatest day. As this condition is confronting us, I am bringing this to your attention because I know you want me to—and because you do not intend to allow any family to go without the necessities of Christmas. We have cut down our allowances to a minimum, we have arranged to purchase very economically and we feel compelled to tell you that the demand on us this Christmas is the heaviest we have had in many years. Please act promptly in this matter, it is necessary, and we will appreciate it. We will tell you, too, that no matter how little you send—it will go far on Christmas Day with the families who are in such circumstances that they depend on you.

TO THE PUBLIC

An extremely heavy demand is placed on the Salvation Army this Christmas. The necessary money has been slow in coming in and I add my appeal to that of Ensign Van Syckle to the end that no worthy family and no good boy or girl be required to dispense with the simple observance of that day which is dedicated to peace and great joy. Send a check to me and I will see that it is immediately added to the Christmas fund.

Expect Record Crowd At Armory Fights Friday

One of the largest gatherings of fight fans that ever crowded the armory is expected to be at the drill shed Friday night when a stellar card, topped by an eight round tilt between Nick Zinna of this city and Harry Mulcahy of New York, will go on.

The entire evening's performance is scheduled for 32 rounds, every one of which promises action galore. National Guardsmen matched to fight here Friday are of the type that are in the heat of the fray every minute, so some real toe-to-toe slugging is expected to characterize the fistic program.

For instance there is the four-round curtain raiser bringing together Jerry Sampere of Poughkeepsie and Charlie Wimms of West Point. Both these boys have given exhibitions in the armory and proved that they are tough customers with a good wallop. Each contestant can stand a lot of punishment, so indications of a knockout are not very strong. The fight according to all signs will go the limit, and promises to be a "whale of a scrap" in every round.

The two six rounders that will follow it also give every indication of being tilts that fans will remember for some time. Pete "Kid" Buckman, who meets Eddie McKenna, the "Fighting Irishman of the 69th Regiment", plans on re-establishing his knockout record, but will have a real job on his hands with McKenna. Eddie is a real tough boy, says Matchmaker Jimmy Ambrose, and a scrapper that should give Buckman plenty of trouble.

In the other six rounder Roy Van Buren of this city and Eddie Ziegler, the hard-shelled bantamweight of New York, will take and give. Ziegler is of the opinion that he will have an easy time with Van Buren, who is set to score a victory over the peppy little New Yorker. Roy has been training at the armory gym and is said to be in good shape.

Many fans are interested in the semi-final, which brings together Johnny Blaine and Charlie Molvin, both local boys. Followers of each predict a win for their idol. Blaine's rooters, informed that he is in the pink of condition and ready for battle, can see nothing but a clear-cut victory for him. On the other hand, Molvin's rooters are of the opinion that he will take the scrap by a big margin.

Of course everyone who is the least bit interested in armory boxing will want to see the Nick Zinna-Harry Mulcahy ring argument. It promises to be one of the best scraps ever staged at the drill shed. The desire of each contestant to score a victory presages that there will be plenty of fireworks.

The reserved seat sale has been very large and there is no doubt concerning the attendance. Every indication points to a large assemblage of fans. Those who expect to get good bleacher seats are advised to be on hand early.

Kid Chocolate Defeats Petrone

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—Kid Chocolate, Cuban negro featherweight, can go back home for Christmas with the knowledge that he has met and overcome his strongest opponent since he disposed of Al Singer last spring. He also attracted some 20,000 fans as contributors to the Christmas fund of the Fifth Avenue Boys' Association.

Chocolate had some stiff opposition from Dominic Petrone of New York last night but after a few rounds he came through to add one more triumph to his long list.

Petrone, with a three-pound weight advantage and a couple of inches in reach, battled Chocolate to a standstill through the first two or three rounds of a ten-round bout at the Coliseum but wilted under the negro's merciless hammering and escaped a knockout by a slim margin. Only his stout heart kept him from going down in the closing rounds when Chocolate hit him almost as he plunged.

Sunday School League Scores

One big upset occurred in the Senior Sunday School League games at the Y. M. C. A. court Wednesday night when the Comforters defeated the Congregationals 31 to 24. The Redeemer-Presbyterian game was the best of the night for it wasn't until the last quarter that the Redeemers went into the lead and took the game 26 to 19.

It was unusual for the Comforters to take up the lead and hold it against the Congregationals. The latter team for the past two years has been exceptionally strong and has been the runner-up for the league championship against the Redeemers. Although the Comforters have not been an outstanding team in the league they are not weak by any means.

The Comforters went into the lead at the beginning and held it, although the Congregationals came within striking distance at times. The score at the half was in the Comforters' favor, 20 to 10. The second half was less interesting than the first. The Congregationals went to pieces entirely. Their defense was worth nothing while the offense attack failed to penetrate the Comforter defense. The battle ended: Comforters, 31; Congregationals, 24.

The second game of the night held plenty of thrills for the fans. It wasn't the question of unevenly matched teams but of evenly matched teams. The Presbyterians kept in the race throughout the first half, which the Redeemers had 12 to 8. In the second half many times the score was tied. However, in the last quarter the Redeemers went into a safe lead and won the game 26-19.

The Port Ewen Men's Club trimmed the Excelsiors, 36-23, recently at the Port Ewen Reformed Church Hall court. J. Booth on Yale Quintet.

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—Albie Booth, Yale football star, makes his debut in New York tonight in a brand new role. Albie is a substitute guard on the Yale basketball team which plays Fordham. He is expected to get into the game, although he is not listed in the starting lineup.

Chicago Invites the Army.

Chicago, Dec. 19 (AP).—Chicago is in the market for the annual Notre Dame-Army football game next year if military academy officials decide to take the classic from New York. The City Council has unanimously adopted a resolution by Alderman Jacob M. Arvey, inviting Army to bring the contest to Soldier Field.

LOOKS LIKES FIVE TITLES IN ROW FOR OZARK OUTFIT

Down in the Ozark country they are planning on another Southwest conference basketball championship. The Razorbacks have won four straight titles and they are stronger than ever this year. Eight six-foot sophomores replace two veterans who graduated. Captain Schoonover and Ken Holt are the key men on Coach Bassett's team.

By GAYLE TALBOT, Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Fayetteville, Ark. (AP).—Less than ten years ago the University of Arkansas basketball team played on a dirt court and the tall boys from the Ozark hills considered themselves lucky to that.

Today the lanky Razorbacks are undisputed rulers of Southwest conference cage circles. For four straight years they have swept through to the championship, and prospects are bright for a fifth consecutive title.

Seven rangy veterans, none under six feet, comprise a nucleus for the team that Coach Charles "Chuck" Bassett will pit against this year's foes. Only two members of that powerful quintet that crushed all opposition last year are missing, Tom Pickell and Eugene Lambert, and there is a wealth of material to replace them.

However, the "miracle man," Francis A. Schmidt, who coached the Razorbacks into national prominence on the basketball court, is absent. He has cast his lot with Texas Christian University, which won its first conference title under his direction this year.

Captain Wear Schoonover, all-conference star both in basketball and football, will lead this year's team from a forward post.

James Pickren, forward; Kenneth Holt, center; Roy Prewitt, center, and Milan Creighton and Tom Oliver, guards, are other veterans from last year's championship squad. All are about six feet, two inches in height.

In addition there are eight promising candidates from the 1929 freshmen squad, all over six feet.

During the Christmas holidays the team will barnstorm through Missouri, Oklahoma and Kansas, playing 13 games.

Army Team Off For Palo Alto

West Point, Dec. 19 (AP).—The Army football "team," 110 strong, was en route today on the longest trip ever taken by the gridiron warriors of the Military Academy. They were due to reach Galesburg, Ill., this afternoon on the first leg of the trip to Palo Alto, Cal., where they will meet Stanford, December 28.

The departure of the "West Point Special," a 13 car train which provides every possible comfort for a travelling football team, was made a ceremonial occasion yesterday when the academy superintendent, Major General W. R. Smith, gave permission for the cadets to give final vocal encouragement to the department squad. General Smith previously had ruled that the cadets could not be present at the departure on account of examinations, but he relaxed the ruling to permit 500 who were free most of the afternoon to be present.

The arrival of the train at Galesburg this afternoon will be another important occasion. The players, officials and others who bring the party to a total of 140 members are to be the guests of the city.

While the team is drilling, a reception is to be held in honor of General Smith and his staff officers.

Two members of the Plebe football team, which was taken along to give the varsity practice at its various stops along the route, were left behind because of failures in the December "writs" or examinations. Cy Letzelter, former Carnegie Tech back, and O'Reilly, a lineman, failed to make the required grade of 2.2 in the English examination.

Monticello at Port Ewen Tonight

Spinny's Radio Five will play its regular weekly game at Pythian Hall, Port Ewen, tonight against the strong Monticello outfit that now holds a 37-29 victory over the radio team.

It is the aim of the Spinny team to even matters with Monticello and a puzzling attack has been planned by the Port Eweners. They will fight hard tonight to overcome the mountaineers, who are rated as a very proficient quintet.

The regular Spinny aggregation will be ready for the game. It is made up of Dan Joyce, "Bing" Van Etten, Wes Hyatt, Bill Smith, J. and H. Short. Monticello will have H. Franks, Grossinger, Flannelly, Knight, Kane and Nelson, the same group of players that trimmed the radio five before.

The game will get started at 8:30, following a preliminary between the Irish-Americans and the Port Ewen Men's Club, which is slated for 7:30. Maisenhelder's Commanders will furnish music for dancing after the games.

Fulton Will Try Comeback.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 19 (AP).—Fred Fulton, who was fighting in the heavyweight division during Jess Willard's regime as champion, is training for a comeback attempt. The Minnesota Plasterer", barred by the Minnesota State Boxing Commission several years ago, has been reinstated, and is preparing himself to try again.

Sport Slants

By Alan J. Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

It remains a serious question whether the Bunion Derby or the annual baseball meetings are more ruinous to the feet. Each is productive of fallen arches, without any particularly tangible results. Each may have some vital object in view, but it is as yet not quite clear.

Good fellowship and a chance to talk it over must justify the mid-winter baseball pow-wows, such as those that broke upon the unsuspecting populace of Chattanooga and New York this year. New York, however, has reached the point where these sessions can be taken or left alone.

Unfeeling, in fact, was the Gotham gesture in dismantling the historic of Waldorf-Astoria, whose corridors echoed for years to the tramping feet of baseball men and whose marble pillars supported many a groggy sports writer, surrounded by three scouts, two managers and a left-handed pitcher.

Serenely and with the sparkle of youth still in his age, the sage of the Athletics, Connie Mack, walked among the scribes and the Pharisees in annual convlave. Right-hand-man Eddie Collins, a bundle of energy, was with him.

"The re-action from fans all over the country to our victory was a little short of amazing," said the mild-mannered Mr. Mack, who never seems to get over his spirit of wonder at all the tumult and shouting. "Why, you know, my desk at Shibe Park is just jammed with letters and telegrams. I would like to answer every one, but it would take me all winter."

It is a coincidence that the records of the leading money-winning sires of the British and American turf for 1929 were almost identical.

Chicle, the imported son of Spearmint-Lady Hamburg, led the American winning list with $254,655, due principally to the triumphs of the great Whitney juvenile, Whichone, victor in the rich Belmont Futurity.

Tetratema, by The Tetrarch-Scotch Gift, topped the British sires with 51,397 pounds, the equivalent of about $250,000.

R. C. Dawson, who trained thoroughbreds in Britian for The Aga Kahn, among others, led the trainers on either side of the Atlantic with total winnings of 74,754 pounds, approximately $375,000, the result of saddling 58 winners.

Anxious to avoid anything like the fiasco attending the challenge for the International Polo Cup in 1927, the British already are advocating a tryout of the best available talent, whether Indian, Irish or English, in selecting the team to invade the United States next summer.

The original mention of Major Phipps Hornsby, Captain C. T. I. Roark, Captain H. C. Tremayne and Colonel P. K. Wise of the international quartet is now considered premature by London experts. H. P. Guiness is regarded as a leading contender, as well as two officers in the Indian forces, Captain George and Major Atkinson, both with international experience.

Billiard Players Tied.

Detroit, Dec. 19 (AP).—Erwin Rudolph of Chicago finally was stopped. As a result of Ralph Greenleaf's victory by 125 to 79 in ten innings last night, the two players were tied as the world's championship pocket billiards tournament ended with six games won and one lost. The playoff is set for tonight.

Marsters Speaker at DUSO Banquet

Al Marsters, famous Dartmouth athlete and all-American football back, is to be the guest of honor and speaker at the annual Hi-Y Duso League football banquet to be held in the Y. M. C. A. here Monday, December 23. The banquet is for all members of Hi-Y clubs and football players of the cities comprising the DUSO League, Newburgh, Middletown and Port Jervis are planning on sending good delegations.

The banquet is being planned by the local Hi-Y Club under the direction of Gordon Watts, its president, and it was largely through his efforts that Marsters was secured as a speaker. It is expected that over two hundred from the four cities in the league will be present at the dinner. The complete program has not as yet been announced but the boys are anxious to have this year's banquet the best the league has ever had. This marks the first year that Kingston has been host to the other league members.

It is understood that one feature of the banquet will be the awarding of the beautiful football trophy to Newburgh, the only league team going through the season undefeated.

News from the World on Wheels

Buick and Marquette prices have been increased, ranging from $35.00 to $75.00, being a return to about the same list prices on several models which prevailed during the past year, while on some models the new prices are still lower than the past year.

Pierce-Arrow enters 1930 with a brilliant array of straight eights, introducing cars of new dimensions and a notable group of mechanical developments, including a more powerful engine and a silent gear-shift capable of what are believed to be the fastest traffic accelerations in America. Three groups of cars, instead of two, as formerly, including a new and slightly smaller model of somewhat lower price ($2595 at Buffalo), will serve to extend the Pierce-Arrow line so that it covers all price brackets of the fine-car field. Aside from special custom body models, the product will be built in eighteen body styles and in four lengths of wheelbase.

The bantam Austin, a small car of distinctive smartness, unique in size, weight and performance, will join the fashion parade on American roads this spring. Back of the bantam Austin's introduction to American motorists will be a seven-year's record of success which has brought world-wide acceptance of this little car. From the standpoint of performance it continues to challenge the motor world, with its day by day record of between forty and fifty miles on a gallon of gas, and as much as 1,500 miles on one quart of oil.

Among those who took delivery of new Packard cars at the Packard factories in Detroit last week was H. Albert Schmidt, Cannes, France. He drove his car to New York where it was to be shipped to his home. Four successive years Mr. Schmidt has gone to Detroit from Cannes, placed his order for a specially painted Packard and driven it personally to New York for shipment back home, accompanying it on the same steamer. Each car has been his entry in the annual Cannes Concours d'Elegance or beauty contest. This year Mr. Schmidt said he hoped to duplicate his feat of each of the three previous years in winning the warmly contested event, one of the most novel of the automobile beauty contests held in Europe.

A cable received at the Auburn factory from F. M. LaBastille, Auburn representative for South America, says that the reception of the Cord front drive and Auburn line of cars at the twelfth annual motor show now being held at Buenos Aires was very satisfactory. Interest in the show was widespread and buying was greatly in evidence.

F. W. Drake of Belvidere, Illinois, who travels 40,000 miles a year on business, recently purchased a Studebaker house bus. Supplying him with transportation and sleeping quarters, his bus, Drake says, has saved him $300 a month and will pay for itself within two years.

Alertness, always a factor in any athletic contest, was responsible for Notre Dame's victory over the Army in one of the most important intersectional football struggles of the year. It was the alertness of Jack Elder, Notre Dame back, who intercepted an Army forward pass and galloped 97 yards for the only touchdown of the bitterly fought contest. This touchdown and Cariden's goal kick enabled Notre Dame to win, 7 to 0, and complete its season undefeated and untied.

"Be alert." This has always been the command of Coach Knute Rockne during the many successful seasons he has been in charge of football at Notre Dame.

The totalizer broke all records for England when it paid 3,410 to 1 on Coole, the winner of one of the Haydock park races. A woman was the only person who backed the horse to win, and she received about $1,700 on a 50-cent bet, plus $50 on a place bet of the same amount. Bookmakers paid only 12½ to 1 on the same horse. The previous record price paid was 2384 to 1 at Catterick August 3.

Charles (Stretch) Murphy, Purdue's towering basketball center, and Glen Harmeson, flashy forward, will divide the captaincy honors on the Boilermakers' basketball squad this season, Coach Ward Lambert announced.

No captain was elected at he close of last season, the squad deciding to leave the choice of a leader to Lambert.

Hockey under the new code of rules in use this season is a combination of football, lacrosse, basketball, boking and bull-fighting, according to Herb Gardiner, one of the veteran managers of the game. Besides all the excitement, there is an abundance of scoring this season. Shutouts seem to be the rare exception, whereas they were the rule before the changes came. This increase in goal making adds to the spectator's interest to such an extent that some of the club owners already are wondering where they are going to put the customers when the pennant races warm up.

"A high school player who has had the proper training is a good man to have," says Burt Ingwersen, Iowa coach. "We don't like boys who have been so blown up by big prep school reputations that they come to us with the idea that they are stars, but the fellows who have the proper grounding in fundamentals have that much of an edge over the green ones."

The pageant, an arrangement by Rosamond Kimball, is composed of selections from the Bible, given in dramatic form on the plan of a mystery play, picturing the incidents of the Gospel story of the nativity and accompanied by Christmas carols. Ross K. Osterhoudt is cast in the part of Zacharias; Miss Carol Nilssen is the Angel Gabriel; the shepherds are portrayed by Claude Krom, Lansing Hunt and Reigh Sahler, and the wise men by Andrew Hansen, Elmer Krom and Jesse Hunt. Mrs. C. P. Harder takes the part of Mary, and Miss Bessie Krom is the angel of the annunciation. Mrs. Gladys E. Ford is directing the production, and an augmented choir under the direction of Jesse Hunt will render the music. The public is cordially invited.

Other services at the Methodist Church for Sunday are as follows: Sunday school at 9:30; morning worship at 10:30; theme, "The Vision of the Star." The pageant will be given at the union evening service at 8.

The members and friends of the Methodist Church and Sunday school will enjoy the annual Christmas party on Monday evening, December 23, at 7 o'clock. Santa Claus has promised to be present and hand out gifts to the little folks and there will be good things to eat for all.

Millennium Possibility

Ancient Superstition

Shakespeare, in "As You Like It," alludes to a common belief of the time, that a toad's head did contain a precious stone. There was also a notion that if one touched such a stone to the bite of a venomous animal, it would draw the poison out. Many rings were set with stones purported to have come from toad's heads, and they were usually carved with the figure of a toad.

Ventilation Is Most Important With Seed

Freezing Is One of Winter Troubles of Spuds.

Freezing is most feared by potato growers when considering storage problems. As a result greater losses probably come from high temperatures than low, according to A. L. Wilson of the New York State College of Agriculture.

The difference between good and bad storage is only a matter of a few degrees above 40 degrees Fahrenheit; 34 to 40 degrees would be ideal; below 34 degrees means freezing, and above 40 degrees conditions are favorable for sprouting. Shrinkage increases rapidly as sprouts appear.

If the air is too dry, water loss from the potatoes will cause shrinkage, and if it is too moist, moisture will collect on the walls and ceiling, and on the tubers. The presence of drops of moisture on the ceiling or on the pile is a danger signal, for rot will begin unless ventilators are provided that may be open with safety on a relatively cold day.

Ventilation is more important with seed stock than market potatoes. It is essential to seed and preferable for market stock to come out of storage with vitality intact and a good appearance. Darkened areas on the tubers and a low vitality can be charged to lack of oxygen in the storage.

Stale and moist air must be removed and home-made devices will serve. False floors and walls will let air circulate around the pile. Slatted chutes may be run through the piles, or empty crates or barrels may be used.

Fertilizer Necessary for Best Garden Crops

It is not too early to begin thinking about and planning the farm or home vegetable garden, according to A. M. Binkley, assistant professor of horticulture at the Colorado Agricultural college.

Vegetable gardens should be well planned now, he says. New seed catalogues are being distributed to farmers and gardeners. The wise man will have his plans completed early and the quantities of seed determined so he can place his order soon.

By ordering early from reliable local seed dealers and reputable seed houses, one can avoid the delays caused by the rush of business later in the season, and the possible substitutions for desired varieties.

In planning the farm or home vegetable garden, one must first decide how much of each kind of vegetable to plant. This can only be estimated on the space available for the garden and the needs and tastes of the family.

In making selections of vegetable seeds from catalogues it is best to order standard varieties, Mr. Binkley declares.

Plan Vegetable Garden for Profitable Results

A garden started with a sod plowed under may worry along with commercial fertilizers for a few years but unless the humus, the decaying plant material in the soil, is renewed a gradual decrease in productiveness will occur. Where stable manure is not obtainable, leaves, lawn clippings, and other plant refuse may be piled up until partially decayed and then applied to the soil, or reasonable amounts may be spread directly upon it and spaded in. One good way to increase the humus content is to plant rye after the crops are removed. This may be done gradually as some crop is removed and some small space left vacant in the fall. The rye should be turned under the next spring before it makes too much growth.

Agricultural Hints

The farm tractor cannot be operated economically unless it is kept at its optimum load.

* * *

Potassium is a plant food that is very abundant in some fields and others are lacking in this element.

* * *

To do a job well and to feel that you are a necessary part of the world's progress—that is success or at least a large share of it.

* * *

Farm manure has a considerable amount of potassium and some of the good effects of manure may be due to the amount of the element present.

* * *

It has been found that wet soil does not freeze as easily as dry soil, and it has also been proven that the roots of plants are much less frost resistant than are the tops.

* * *

On wooded hillsides remove the trees gradually if there is danger of erosion. If the trees are all removed at once, gullies will be formed before the grass has time to get started.

* * *

Treating seed wheat assures smut free crop. Copper carbonate kills the smut spores on the seed. If the spores are not killed they may sprout and grow, producing the fungus that causes stinking smut.

* * *

Improve the tilth of garden soil by applying at least 20 tons of well-rotted manure per acre or by plowing under a green manuring crop. Lime and fertilizer, where needed, also aid in soil preparation.

House Plants

It is a pleasant occupation for children to care for plants. If each child is given bulbs, or small plants and allowed to select the plants put any color he wants, quite soon friendly competition results and the plants benefit by the diligent care given them.

Egg-Laying Species

Reptiles, including the alligator and the tortoise, lay eggs containing a large amount of food-yolk with a smaller proportion of white, and usually the shell is like parchment in texture. Insects of all kinds, crustaceans and molluscs, amphibia and two species of mammal are egg layers. The egg laying mammals are the duck billed platypus and the echidna or spiny anteate, both Australian animals.

Unmoving Glaciers

A "dead" glacier is the name given by geologists to a glacier which no longer moves. Some glaciers seem to "fossilize," neither moving nor melting.

Events Around The Empire State

(By the Associated Press)

Watertown (AP)—William H. Butler of Massena and his divorced wife, Jennie Clark Butler, were remarried here one year after their divorce was granted.

New York (AP)—The first regular street car service in the United States is said to have been started here. In 1832 horse-cars ran between the city hall and 14th street.

Corning (AP)—"Hip pocket" liquor confiscated by local police is no longer dumped into the city drains. It is saved and the officers take turns using it in the radiators of their cars.

Cortland (AP)—Angelo Famularo has been retired on pension by the Lackawanna Railroad after 30 years as track walker on the Syracuse division. Angelo estimates that in the 30 years he walked more than 100,000 miles.

Geneva (AP)—Approximately 250 Christmas baskets will be distributed among the poor of this city under the terms of a $20,000 trust fund established by the late George W. Fowle of Detroit, in memory of his mother, Mrs. Chardotte W. Fowle, who lived here at one time.

Dunkirk (AP)—The glass plant of Thatcher Manufacturing Company has been closed for the remainder of this month while the furnaces are being repaired. The regular employes have been retained to do the repair work.

Fredonia (AP)—Mysterious night shooting on the state highway between Cassadaga has been resumed. Elmer Anderson of Jamestown narrowly escaped being struck by shots fired through the rear window of his automobile. A special detail of state troopers has been assigned to guard the highway. Earlier in the year other Jamestown motorists reported that shots were fired at them.

New York (AP)—A concrete and steel coal pocket, 300 feet long, 40 feet wide and 25 feet high, said to be the largest of its kind in the country, has just been completed at the South Brooklyn terminal of the Lackawanna Railroad.

Healed His Rupture
I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. I had tried my only hope of recovery was an operation. Everything I tried did not stand. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely healed my rupture. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no hospital, no trouble. I will give full information about how you may find a complete rupture without operation if you write to me. Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 7 R. Marcellus Ave., Massapequa, N. Y. Better cut out this notice and show to any others who are ruptured. It may save a life or at least stop misery of the rupture and the risk and danger of an operation.

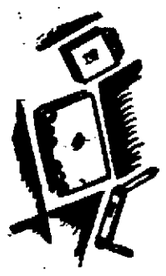
Gifts that go straight to DAD'S HEART


Dad, you know, is a much neglected person.
He likes remembrances as well as anyone . . . but how infrequently he gets them!
Oh, yes . . . we know . . . ties, handkerchiefs, cigars and so on . . . but those are things that (if you'll take a man's word for it) he'd rather choose himself.
And then, take a Dad's word in behalf of other Dads, you mightn't suspect it even . . . but under Dad's gruff, and granite exterior (which is all a manly bluff) there's a world of sentiment.
He'd love an unexpected gift . . . something that lasts . . . something that he could treasure and cherish along with a memory of the love that prompted it.
The store is rich in just such things from mens Watches to the newest of cigar lighters . . . at all prices. Won't you come in, and let us help you read Dad's mind?
